WE NOMINATE

Milton Byron Babbitt, one of this country's distinguished composers, whose exciting work in the field of electronic music is being highlighted this week as musicologists from all parts of the world converge upon New York City, Princeton, and New Haven for the Eighth International Congress of Musicologists. One of the 15-year old Babbitt's works, "Vision and Prayer," composed entirely without performers and musical instruments on the giant electronic mechanism known as the RCA-Princeton-Columbia Synthesizer, was featured last evening (Wednesday) as a major component of a "Program of New American Music" presented in Manhattan's Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The rendition of "Vision and Prayer" before a hand-picked audience was not only a tribute to Babbitt's achievements but was also a bench-mark in the on-going development of the Columbia-Princeton Electronic Music Center established in 1959 with a Rockefeller Foundation grant. This center of advanced study and artistic creation is in the scope of "its implications and its strategic nature the 'Matterhorn' of contemporary music." Its research, Babbitt has pointed out, "requires the cooperation of the musician, the electrical engineer, the psychologist and even the mathematician; the community of diverse and specialized knowledge available uniquely at a university."

The success of the Princeton-Columbia undertaking, which is directed by a four-scholar committee including Babbitt and Princeton's Roger Sessions, is largely attributable to the interest and cooperation of the Radio Corporation of America, two of whose scientists (Harry Olson and Herbert Belar) developed here in Princeton the most sophisticated electronic sound producer yet conceived, the RCA Synthesizer. This one and only existing model, enabling a composer to compress into a single act the five functions of composing, copying his score and parts, rehearsing, performing and recording his composition, was made immediately available to the universities by RCA's Princeton Laboratories.

Babbitt, who insists that music produced by means of "instructed electronic oscillations" should be "no more alarming than music produced with that oddly shaped wooden box equipped with taut strings which we call a violin," combines his wide-ranging knowledge of higher mathematics with his approaches to his "new music." For instance, during World War II he was engaged in classified research for the Army Signal Corps and, on his return to Princeton, before he elected to devote full time to composition, actually joined the Department of Mathematics to carry forward researches in "group combinatory theory."

Philadelphia-born and Mississippi-raised, Babbitt completed his undergraduate work at New York University and first studied composition here under his Princeton associate, Professor Sessions. He taught in the University's Department of Music in the late 1930's and early 1940's and "came back" as one of the Department's head-liners in 1951. Over the past decade, while gaining recognition for his distinctive use of the system of musical composition known as the 12-tone technique, he has been associated with the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies, the Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood) and a number of professional organizations, including the League of Composers and the International Society for Contemporary Music.

For his accomplishments on the far frontiers of modern music; for challenging, in the opinion of one observer, "the very foundations of musical thought"; for feeling that we are now "entering the most exciting of musical times"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

SUPERHIGHWAY PLANNED

Would Parallel PRR Tracks. A new limited access highway has been proposed which would parallel the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks through Princeton Junction. Designated as Interstate Route 95, it is shown on current ESSO road maps — see illustration, page 3.

According to County Planning Engineer Louis Calvanelli, the route for the superhighway is now under consideration in Washington. As shown on the ESSO map, it links the New Jersey Turnpike just south of New Brunswick with Route 1 just north of Trenton.

Independent consultants originally suggested placing the highway between 200 and 500 yards to the east of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, Mr. Calvanelli reported. But he is in favor of building the road about 2000 yards to the east of the tracks to avoid industry already located along the railroad.

Route 95 might also be run to the West of Princeton to avoid duplicating the facilities now provided by the New Jersey Turnpike and Routes 1 and 130, he added. This latter alternative has never been put on paper, however, according to Mr. Calvanelli.

Alignment Only, So Far. The path along the railroad tracks is only an "alignment" thus far, Mr. Calvanelli pointed out. Before any positive action could be taken a public hearing would have to be held, he explained.

Although well aware that the proposed route for the superhighway would rouse Princeton Junction residents, the County Planning Engineer noted that such roads "have to go somewhere." He suggested that any other route might stir up equal if not greater opposition.

The central New Jersey portion of Route 95 would serve as a link in the Maine to Florida system of limited access defense highways scheduled for the future. Toll roads such as the New Jersey Turnpike might be used for portions of the route.

Mr. Calvanelli would like to see Route 95 connect with another interstate defense highway, Route 295, in the vicinity of the present Motor Vehicle Inspection Station at Baker's Basin. One of the two routes would continue down the New Jersey side of the Delaware, while the other would form part of the circumferential highway for Trenton, crossing into Pennsylvania and proceeding down the far side of the Delaware.

WEATHER MAKES HISTORY

With 90-Degree Days. Those who insist that the summer of 1961 is the hottest on record are dead right—provided they base their judgment on the number of days in which the temperature has exceeded 90 degrees. It will, of course, not be until fall arrives (at 2:43 a.m. on September 23) that the average temperature for the season can be measured against other years.

The current summer's predilection for pestering inhabitants of the eastern seaboard with temperatures (and humidity) above what often seems the boiling point has gained renewed emphasis with the arrival of September. Through the middle of this week, 1961 had total 31 days above 90—a clear-cut record, albeit one that could stand for the rest of the century with widespread approval.

September had the undistinguished honor of topping 90 in each of its first six days, thereby breaking Weather Bureau records for the Princeton area. Inasmuch as the last day of August brought a high of 90, it marked a full week of such mercurial readings and tossed into discard the tradition that Labor Day marks the end of the summer season.

In the last ten days, the lowest reading was 66, and on most to them, the thermometer remained in the 70's at night, making sleeping less comfortable than normal. Almost without fail, the humidity kept pace with the temperature.

After an extremely wet July (10.72 inches, just short of an all-time roceord), August was virtually normal in this respect. The 4.45 inches of precipitation were "about right" from the Weather Man's point of view.

Forecast Was Too Accurate. On July 25, just after a 96-degree day has seared the countryside, professional forecaster David M. Ludlum told TOWN TOPICS

"I can't see any reason for the current heat wave to break. There's nothing, absolutely nothing, in the way of a high pressure area in Canada to move out the hot, moist air reaching us from the southwest. Just say we are sure to have cooler weather by October."

If Mr. Ludlum, who operates Princeton-based Scientific Associates, needs a testimonial for his weather-forecasting services, his long-range estimate of 1961's summer-time depredations against

Ten Years Ago In Princeton

TOWN TOPICS, Sept. 1-7, 1951: More and more commuters were wondering whether or not the enlargement of the parking facilities at the Princeton Junction Station didn't mean the ultimate suspension of shuttle railroad service between Princeton and the Pennsylvania's "main line".

It had been reported on "good authority" that the P.J. and B. ("Princeton Junction and Back"), long considered a losing financial proposition from the point of view of passenger travel, will ultimately be supplanted by a railroad-operated motor coach service. The enlarged new congested parking-yard on the "westbound side" at the Junction, it was pointed out, could well provide pick-up and discharge points for Princetonians headed for New York and Philadelphia.

Borough Mayor and Council were brought face-to-face with the question of a 40-hour week for Borough employees. A petition for a 40-hour week, effective January 1, 1952, for the Police Department (then working a 48-hour week) was addressed to the "Borough Fathers" by the Police Personnel Committee headed by then Patrolman (today Lieutenant) Peter J. McCrohan.

The Borough in the late summer of 1951 had entered into a "verbal agreement" to purchase from P.M.I. the parking lot on the corner of Chambers and Hulfish Streets, opposite the "new Gallup Building". While a great deal of red tape remained untied, it was definite that the Borough, implementing its newly instituted Parking Ordinance, would soon be operating a lot capable of accomodating nearly 100 cars!

Estimated total cost of the undertaking, described in 1951 as a long step forward by the Borough, was approximately $100,000. Included in this figure were the purchase-price as well as the costs of metering all spaces in the lot, hard-surfacing and lighting.

The "wondrously dressed" Constance Bennett, appearing in Samuel Raphaelson's comedy, "Skylark", followed sister Joan Bennett into McCarter Theater in the summer season's finale . . . Clifton Webb in "Mr. Belvidere Rings the Bell" was the Playhouse attraction, while "the latest" Abbott & Costello slapdashery, "Comin' Round the Mountain," was tickling the comedy team's faithful in The Garden.

The Princeton Community Players were planning fall meetings for Avalon, the delightful residence of the late Henry van Dyke, which was to bestow its name upon Avalon Place after falling victim to apathy, termites, and wrecking crews . . . Stop-signs were installed for the first time at the intersection of Washington and College Roads.

TOWN TOPICS' nominee for Man of the Week was Edward Samuel Corwin, one of the nation's leading authorities on U.S. Constitutional Law and Woodrow Wilson's successor as McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence. In the hot summer of 1951 Professor Corwin, now 83, had once again made headlines by suggesting that President Truman's disregard of legislative action might "well constitute a significant trend in Constitutional interpretation."

Register Now

The Mercer County Mobile Registration Unit will visit Princeton next Tuesday and Wednesday. Registration for this year's election closes September 28.

Tuesday the unit will be located at the Valley Road School, while Wednesday it will move to the Hook and Ladder Firehouse on Harrison Street North. It will be open from 6 to 8 p.m. each day, and voters from either the Borough or Township may register at both locations.

mankind will turn the trick. "There is no reason," he reiterated this week, "to think that any major change in the abnormally high temperatures will take place before October." The latest 30-day forecast released by the U.S. Weather Bureau fully supports his outlook.

"The Bermuda High remains the culprit," Mr. Ludlum reported. "It has withstood the efforts of a series of weak Canadian highs to penetrate beyond Lake Erie. Even the few thunderstorms we have had this summer have been 'hot;' that is, they have been unable to produce the mass of cooling air usually following in the wake of such disturbances."

Hurricanes Diverted. One welcome development can be attributed to the staying power of the Bermuda High, Mr. Ludlum pointed out. The two most recent hurricanes, Betsy and Carla, spotted in south Atlantic waters have no chance of reaching the United States.

"One of the hurricanes followed the eastern fringe of the high," Mr. Ludlum said, "the other is bouncing around the southern fringe. Neither is a great threat here—they just can't advance against that huge high pressure area."

So, no real break during September is the unwelcome, if accurate, report. "That snow in Denver," Mr. Ludlum remarked somewhat wistfully, "melted long before it reached New Jersey."

"YES" CONTINUES

Through School Year. The Youth Employment Service, 120 John Street, will resume its regular office hours starting Monday and will be open thereafter from 1 to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 9 to noon on Saturdays. The telephone is WA 4-5841.

To be eligible for registration with the service, a young person must have reached his 14th birthday, but not his 18th, must live in Princeton or attend school in Princeton.

"We emphasize that school work comes first," says Mrs. David Parnes, co-executive director, "but there are many students who feel they can carry their academic work and still be available for employment on weekends and after school. We urge these students to come to the YES office and renew their registrations."

Employers are also invited to register with the service and to learn how high-school age young people can relieve regular personnel in store or office.

Person To Person

When the talk got around to mysteries, a friend remarked that probably the greatest mystery in the world, one that he expected would forever be beyond man's understanding, is the fact that no two things in the world, not even the most similar appearing things of man or nature, are exactly alike.

Scientists confirm that never have there been discovered any two objects that are exactly alike. Not even two snowflakes, nor two blades of grass, let alone anything assembled or manufactured by man.

Things so small that they can be seen only under a high powered microscope conform to this invariable law of variation; and scientists believe that the billions of tiny components of the atom, forming all the elements in the world - each one differs from all the others.

This mystery vividly points up the fact that no two automobiles of the same model and make are exactly alike. Each one will have its own peculiarities.

There is no stronger reason why you should buy your automobile from a thoroughly reliable dealer, who should then service it for you for the life of the car. May we serve you.

RAISE TAXES?

Taxpayer Suggests. In the course of a brief meeting held by Township Committee Tuesday night, a Township taxpayer made a statement which has probably never been heard before in Township Hall.

"Why," asked A. V. Bedford, 173 Jefferson Road, "doesn't the Township raise our taxes? I wouldn't mind."

Mr. Bedford is concerned about the leaves which he rakes from his lawn into the gutter. He doesn't think the Township cleans them away often enough, and he would be glad to pay, in taxes, his share of the cost of leaf-removal throughout the Township.

Joseph R. Nini, Township administrator, told Mr. Bedford that the Township's chief concern was to keep the streets clear for traffic purposes, and that the Township has never encouraged leaf-dumping in the streets anyhow. Committeeman Thomas P. Cook suggested that Mr. Bedford start a compost pile.

Intrigued by Mr. Bedford's interest in leaf-removal, Mr. Cook asked how he felt about the question of snow removal from the sidewalks. The Jefferson Road resident said he thought that was the responsibility of the individual property-owner.

Another Township property owner, considerably more disturbed than Mr. Bedford, protested to Committee that he had been discriminated against in the construction of the Magnolia - Broadripple sidewalks.

J. Oliver Gluyas, 73 Magnolia Lane, told Committee that he had to buy topsoil and spend several days grading his property because the new sidewalks had been laid so high above the street. He said that his neighbors' portion of the sidewalk had been laid in such a relationship to the street grade that this work and expense had not been necessary.

Funds for Library. Mrs. Ansley Coale, president of the library's board of trustees, in a letter to Committee, asked for state aid funds to hire an architect who would provide preliminary advice on the construction of a new library, the selection of a site, financing and so on. State aid funds are given to the municipality involved, not directly to the library in question.

Committee instructed Township Attorney Gordon Griffin to confer with Borough Attorney John F. McCarthy, Jr. in order to arrive at a share in the sum requested by the library.

Mr. Cook announced to Committee that, through the efforts of Township police and the Kingston Trap Rock Company, the early-morning trucks on Princeton-Kingston Road had been shunted from that highway to Route One. Police counted eight trucks between 6 and 7 a.m. on the Kingston highway, Mr. Cook said. He also said that Kingston Trap Rock has asked its Trenton trucking company to take another route and that the truckers had complied.

Committee passed on first reading an ordinance providing for 2200 feet of sewer northeast up Mt. Lucas Road from Ewing at a cost of $29,500. The sewer had been recommended by the Board of Health. Public hearing on the ordinance will be held Monday, September 25 at 8 p.m. in Township Hall.

MUSIC, BOOKS, SCIENCE

On Adult School Curriculum. New classes in music, modern European fiction and the history of science will be offered this fall by the Adult School of Princeton. A full description of these courses, and others, and information on fees and registration, will be found on pages 20 and 21 of this issue of TOWN TOPICS.

"Listening to Music — The Study of Structure and Musical Form" will be taught by Mrs. Mathilde McKinney, who will cover such topics as counterpoint, the sonata form, string quartets and the orchestra using, for demonstration, the works of Bach, Hindemith, Webern, Mozart, Bartok, Becthoven and Stravinsky.

Gordon M. Fisher of the department of mathematics, Princeton, will explore the history of science in a course devoted to the rise of the new physics, the decline of mechanistic views of the universe and the development of the scientific method.

Albert Sonnenfeld of the department of Romance Languages, Princeton, will give a course in modern Europen fiction, including in his discussion the works of Mann, Gide, Kafka, Malrzus, Silone, Camus, Greene and Dostoievsky.

All three of these courses will be limited in enrollment and the directors of the school advise an early resigtration.

As a sequel to "Birds of Princeton", Charles Rogers, curator of the university's Museum of Zoology, will give a course in "Birds of the New Jersey Shore" and will also cover hard-to-identify birds in the Princeton area.

The school will again give a class in seamanship and small-boat handling under the auspices of the Coast Guard Auxiliary. At the end of the course, those who pass a Coast Guard examination will receive a certificate of proficiency.

TWO DIE IN ACCIDENT

After Hitting Truck. Charles J. Mullen, 63, of Lincoln Highway and his grandson, James Martin, 8, same address, were both fatally injured in a car-truck collision Saturday at the junction of county routes 522 and 535 near Jamesburg in South Brunswick Township.

According to State Police, Mr. Mullen was thrown to the road by the force of the impact and was run over by the trailer truck. He was killed instantly. The Martin boy died the following morning in Monmouth Memorial Hospital of multiple skull injuries.

The driver of the truck was Samuel Rabb, 17, of East Brunswick. He was charged with death by auto.

A native of Rocky Hill, Mr. Mullen had spent his lifetime as a resident of Little Rocky Hill. For the past 20 years, he had been an employee of the Permacel Tape Co. of New Brunswick.

Husband of Mrs. Mabel Valooe Mullen, he is also survived by a daughter, Mrs. June Martin, James' mother; five sisters, Mrs. Mamie Cocciolilli and Mrs. Mary Ruggerria, both of Rocky Hill; Mrs. Annie Mondone of Monmouth Junction; Mrs. Rose Schumacher of New Brunswick; and Miss Jessie Mullen of Bloomfield; and two grandchildren.

James, who would have been a third grade student this fall at Cambridge School, Kendall Park, was the son of James and June Martin. He also leaves two brothers, Terry and Tracy; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mabel Mullen; and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Martin of Duluth, Minn.

A double funeral service for the accident victims was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, with the Rev. Charles G. Newbery of Trinity Episcopal Church officiating. Burial was in Franklin Memorial Park Cemetery.

OUT OF THE RACE: Democrat Robert W. van de Velde, 222 Western Way, has withdrawn from the Borough Council race.

Topics Of The Town

VAN DE VELDE OUT

Withdraws Candidacy. Robert W van de Velde, Democratic candidate for election to Borough Council, has withdrawn his name from the race.

In a letter to William Falcey, Mercer County clerk, Dr van de Velde said

"This is to inform you regretfully that I must withdraw, on the advice of my physician, from the political campaign for a seat on the Princeton Borough Council."

According to law, a successor to Dr van de Velde will be named by majority vote of the County Committeemen and Committeewomen in the Borough: two in each of the eight Borough districts. The deadline for choosing a replacement candidate is September 28.

Dr van de Velde was a candidate for Borough Council last year, losing the race by only 96 votes. He is executive secretary of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs and a member of the politics department at Princeton University.

Borough Democrats, who were aware of Dr van de Velde's decision some time before it was formally announced, have not revealed the names of possible candidates for Dr van de Velde's spot on the November ballot.

STROUP ISSUES REPORT

On First Year. "The 1960-61 school year was characterized by an extensive and intensive re-examination and re-appraisal of our school beliefs, practices and goals."

With this statement Chester R Stroup presented to the Borough Board of Education Tuesday night his first full report as superintendent of Borough schools.

Considering each of the Borough's three schools separately, Superintendent Stroup devoted most of his report to the biggest of the three: Princeton High School, with a June, 1961, enrollment of 1523 pupils.

Dr. Stroup reports that one of the areas of greatest growth at the high school has been in guidance, a facet of the high school which was criticized in the 1959 Evaluation Report. A grade-level counsellor progressing through the high school with the class, has proved highly successful, he reports, adding that the pupil-counsellor ratio is no longer out of proportion because of rescheduling the faculty and counsellor work load.

Increased guidance on an individual basis is expected to prepare students to make wiser course selections, Dr. Stroup believes. Eighty colleges and trade schools sent representatives to the high school last year to discuss their programs with students. A unit on "occupations" was taught in five 10-12 grade sections, followed up with individual student conferences.

This year, the guidance department plans faculty orientation sessions, further development of a Senior Class Profile to be forwarded to colleges with transcripts, a more centralized testing program, broader college guidance at all levels and a broader occupational information program.

"Above National Norms." Dr Stroup reports that Princeton High School students are well above national norms in College Board examinations in all subjects.

The Changing Scene

I've been up north
To cool myself
And find some shade—
A vain crusade!

Soon, I'll go south
To warm my bones
And seek the sun
That now I shun.

—CANBY SATISFIED

Brother Canby would have done well to stay north for a while these parts are scheduled to remain baked for some time to come.

Before leaving for the weekend, the Man hung out the familiar sign, "No Relief in Sight." He went rather quickly, too. Seems people are getting tired of the same old refrain.

"Our graduates are still having no critical problems in gaining admittance to college. . . . 49 of our students received scholarships this year. Those going on to advanced study have risen from 32.2 percent of the student body in 1943, to an anticipated 75 percent in 1964."

In an effort to work more closely with sending districts, the high school planned a successful teachers' institute which has brought about a closer liaison between language, guidance, social studies and library departments of the high school and the sending schools. Members of the Borough School Board plan to meet regularly with instruction committees of sending districts to cement the close ties between high school and districts, Dr Stroup said.

Departmental Work. Within the various high school departments, there were innovations, large and small, that marked the progress of the academic year.

● Mathematics: Seven mathematically gifted seniors took the University's calculus course with freshmen and ranked above the class median. The arrangement will continue this year. Next year, these students will be taught in the high school at the University level.

Units in trigonometry and analytic geometry were introduced in four 11th grade classes with good results, and the Yale Mathematics Study Group materials on elementary functions and Matrix Algebra were successfully used in 12th grade advanced mathematics classes.

● English. Rapid reading experiments will be explored this year to see whether they can be used by college-bound students. The teaching of grammar has become an end in itself, rather than a means and a writing test may be used instead of the present grammar tests. Freshmen may in the future be given a battery of English tests to find out whether some are eligible for advanced placement.

Screening of gifted children in English should be more rigorous. A reading program for the fast-moving senior group was instituted last year and Dr. Stroup recommends that it be given in all four years. He also suggests a world literature course in the senior year. Greater emphasis was placed on English composition last year with "good results."

● Science. At the end of its first year, the new physical science course offered "an excellent challenge" to advanced ninth graders. Dr. Stroup suggests refining the selection of

News Of The THEATRES

GUILD STARTS PROGRAM

To Aid McCarter. The newly-formed McCarter Guild, a statewide independent, non-commercial organization formed to support all the performing arts, has launched its first season's program with a variety of activities designed to sustain the main function of the Guild: to make McCarter Center a regional theatre, responsible to the 55 communities now represented on its mailing list.

The first issue of the "Guild Bulletin" will be published this month. Under the editorial guidance of David Vaughn, who wrote program notes last year for McCarter, the Bulletin will have a magazine format and will contain both general articles and specific items on McCarter Center and Guild activities. The first issue will be concerned largely with Bernard Shaw, the Guild reports.

Next Monday, Arthur Lithgow, founder and director of both the Antioch and Akron Shakespeare Festivals, will begin touring New Jersey and parts of Pennsylvania on behalf of the Guild.

The Guild has already hired a full-time administrator, Miss Nancy Shannon, who will have, among other duties, responsibility for arranging activities in which schools will be interested. The Guild will maintain a school department which will send actors and speakers from McCarter to public schools for talks, readings and demonstrations in theatrical techniques. School principals, (not individuals) who are interested in this program may discuss their requests with Miss Shannon at WA 1-8700.

Readings, Scripts Planned. The school department, in conjunction with the state Board of Education, will publish and distribute educational aides and script resumes to school children attending McCarter events. Max Bogart has served as liaison between the Guild and state education officials.

Under the direction of Mrs. Charles W. Caldwell, the Guild will sponsor readings for the blind by McCarter actors, and under the leadership of Stuart Duncan, the Guild will arrange a series of Sunday afternoon readings by New York actors. These will be open to the public at a nominal charge, and will be free to Guild members.

The Guild emphasizes that it is a non-commercial organization devoted to the theatre and that it receives its only support from membership dues. The goal is 2500 members, with the base membership fee $1 and additional membership categories ranging upward to patron status, supporting memberships, and the like, each advance in membership entitling the member to additional privileges.

For the charter season, Guild directors are E. L. Hubler, Mrs. Gordon Knox, Mrs. Raymond Harper and Stuart Duncan, all of Princeton; Mrs. Cyril Nelson of New Brunswick, and regional driectors from Trenton, Somerville, Elizabeth, Rumson, Sea Girt, Freehold, Lakewood and Philadelphia.

FIRST FULL-TIME EMPLOYEE: Miss Nancy Shannon has assumed her duties as administrator of the newly-formed McCarter Guild, thus becoming the organization's first full-time employee. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Shannon of 28 Olden Lane, she worked for McCarter Theatre last year. (Staff Photo.)

"MISALLIANCE" TO OPEN

Princetonians Produce Shaw. A revival of Bernard Shaw's "Misalliance," produced by Stuart Duncan of Princeton and Philip Minor, sometimes of Princeton, will be one of the first offerings of the 1961 off-Broadway season. The play will open on Tuesday, September 19, at the Sheridan Square Theatre in New York.

It will be the second off-Broadway venture for Mr. Duncan, who produced the successful "Under the Sycamore Tree" a few seasons ago. Mr. Duncan, who lives at 114 Elm Road, also has plans for an off-Broadway production of "Age of Anxiety," but "Misalliance" is the next in line.

Mr. Minor will direct the Shaw work. Active in many phases of theatrical life, he worked with the Princeton Players this summer, portraying the tyrant Hamm in Beckett's "Endgame" and directing the two Shaw one-acters that opened the summer season. He is, in addition, one of the owners of the Sheridan Square Theatre.

Several Princeton residents, permanent or temporary, will be part of the scheme when "Misalliance" opens. Donald Moffat, who spent three seasons with the University Players, will play the lead in the Shaw work. Mr. Moffat will also be remembered by Princeton theatre-goers for his work with the APA company in McCarter last fall. He appeared in "The Sea Gull," "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Scapin."

George Reinholt will undertake his first professional assignment in Mr. Duncan's New

DISAGREE ON PROFIT SHARING: Only if the workers also agree to share company losses does Richard Appleby (left) feel that companies ought to share their profits. Charles Trought thinks both the company and the employee would benefit from a profit-sharing plan. See below for other comments. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think big companies like General Motors should share a percentage of their profits with their workers?

Where Asked: Nassau Street

Richard Appleby, Franklin Park, general manager of Turney Motors: No, I think it would be all right only if the workers would agree to share in the losses, too. If a company suffers a loss, its workers should agree to take a cut in pay.

Charles W. Trought, 66 S. Walter Avenue, Trenton, auto mechanic: I certainly do. I think it would give the worker a greater incentive to do good work and to do more of it. It would be to the advantage of the company, too. The more profits made, the more each would share.

Paul L. Smith, Rocky Hill, vocal interpreter: For quite a few years, I have favored the idea of profit-sharing. I think there are many desirable features of the profit-sharing system, most important of which would be the instilling of a greater incentive among workers. I also feel, however, in a free society as ours, that it is up to each individual company to decide its own policy.

Mrs. Edward C. Kopp, 206 Riverside Road, owner of small construction business: Yes, we might as well. We're coming to it, sooner or later. It's socialism and it's on its way and we can't stop it. We have to do something to change the attitude of labor. As long as it is your money and your property, they don't care what they do with it. Maybe this demand will wake up the public.

F. Sherman Brown, Havertown, Pa., pipefitter: I think they're sharing enough of their profits with them right now. Where do you find workers today, anyway? They're not around anymore. It's an old-fashioned term.

Mrs. Jean DeBree, 56 Adams Drive, housewife: Yes, I do. It is through the workers that the big companies get their profits and I see no reason why there shouldn't be a certain percentage shared there. It shouldn't be tremendous—companies have a big overhead—but it should be substantial enough to be worthwhile.

Michael LaFauci, Asbury Park, manager, Davidson's Market: Yes, definitely. It gives the employee more incentive to work. If you give an employee an incentive, he'll produce a lot more, his attitude will be a lot different. Attitude is very important with a worker. After all, if an employee doesn't like who he is working for, he isn't going to work very hard.

Andrew Drummond, Cranbury Road, Grovers Mill, plumber: Yes, their product would be better because the men would be more conscientious and put more craftsmanship into their work. It works both ways.

Mrs. Rose H. Mintz, 35 Forrester Drive, student-teacher: I think it would be a very good idea if they did. For one reason, perhaps, there would be an increase in devotion on the part of the worker; he wouldn't feel he was being exploited. Many would develop a sense of dedication to their craft. Moreover, I think people who work without a feeling of exploitation develop whatever creativity they have within themselves. They become inspired and will not prostitute or botch their work. And much of the work in this country is botched. In a sense, it's kind of a socialistic thing and I'm all for that. Everything you buy in this country is of such mediocre quality. Why?

Mrs. Frances Fricl, 29 Henry Avenue, hairdresser: Yes. I feel they work for the company and should share in the profits, if they are conscientious workers and interested in their jobs. I think they are entitled to it.

Mrs. Anthony Viscusi, 19 S. Stanworth Drive, housewife: Yes, if they can teach their workers what profit-sharing consists of—that's not such an easy matter. And if the companies can still make a reasonable profit.

why should you buy a

SYLVAN POOL now?

here are the reasons why

1. Now is the time when Sylvan Pools' prices are the lowest ever on all 50 custom shapes & sizes. Choose an existing Sylvan shape or design your own with Sylvan.

2. Sylvan's prices now mean that you can save $250 up to $650 depending upon size. Example: a 20' x 40' pool priced at $4790 may now be purchased for $4390.

3. Pool shown above—the 3 pools in 1 Sylvan "S"—may now, for the first time, be purchased at no extra cost. Has clear swimming, separate diving & wading area.

4. By buying & installing your pool now you have the opportunity for arranging and completing all your landscaping before the next full swimming season arrives.

5. Buy and install your Sylvan Pool now and be assured of swimming from the firm warm day next season. This means you will have 100% usage of your pool next year.

6. The savings you'll enjoy for installation now may, in many cases, cover the purchase of a Pool Heater that will extend swimming throughout the month of October.

7. A Sylvan-engineered pool permits the free-forming of ice during the winter months. Thus, you can ice-skate and make your pool a year 'round recreation center.

8. Take advantage of Sylvan's 14 years of vast experience which includes over 2400 pools built to date including hotels, motels, apartment houses, etc.

IT'S NEW To Us

NEW STORE IN TOWN

For Country Gentlemen. Country tweeds and accessories for the man who has left his undergraduate capers behind him; that's the theme of the new men's shop called Maurice Pearce after the man who owns the place.

The address is 195 Nassau, in the Thompson Building next to the Nassau Street School. In his small, intimate shop, Mr. Pearce has assembled a collection of British and Scottish tweed suits, fashioned from conservative tweeds and herringbones and cut as conservatively as the fabric.

For example, a suit of imported Shetland wool in a blue-grey cheviot or a herringbone in a quiet brown will be cut with soft shoulders, slanted hacking pockets, three buttons and center side vents. It's difficult to find a complete tweed suit, as you probably know, and these might well be called collector's items.

Incidentally, the jackets are available separately as sport jackets, if you wish. They are lighter in weight than the usual Harris tweed and are, therefore, suitable to this centrally heated climate. Prices on the suits start at $85.

Tattersall shirts in blues, reds or golds are a washable 80 percent wool, 20 percent cotton, priced at $13.95 and matched to any of the fine neckties at the shop. Many of these ties are quiet solids in wool or silk. Others are clan tartans from clans like the Marshall, Galbraith, Davidson or Forbes, which you don't often see kilting around Nassau Street. The clan ties are wool, of course. Ascots are mostly dark paisley in rich wine or autumn brown.

A six-three ribbed wool sock from England comes in lovett shades and tans, knit in garter length with elastic. Other accesories in the shop include belts, garters and braces made especially for Maurice Pearce, and flat litle billfolds in clan plaids—flat and little because Scotch, presumably—in wool, silk or challis. We think the feminine customers will buy these, too. There's also a tiny snap key chain in rep stripes, challis or wool to keep a neat tab on your keys.

Mr. Pearce has made a warm and quiet spot of his little shop by using a soft Oriental rug, table covers of Scotch blankets, wall hangings of bright tartans, drum-shaded lamps, big oak "men's" chairs and shuttered windows. You know Mr. Pearce, of course. He is English and he has been in the men's wear business all his life. For the past four and one-half years, he has been with Princeton's English Shop and before that he was on Madison Avenue with Paul Stuart.

Small Beer

We have always stood in wonder and awe before the magnificent advances of modern science, and we ran across one the other day that has us speechless.

After years of struggle, research, toil—years in which the weak fell by the way and only the strong pressed on, a national brewery has achieved a major breakthrough, and in a spirit of humanity and compassion has passed on the discovery to you low calorie beer.

The average 12-ounce bottle of beer contains 150 calories. The new Traumer Red Label has only 100, so you can see how important this breakthrough is. You can drink three bottles in rapid succession and take in the same calories you'd get in two bottles of the old kind, and if you don't think that has possibilities, you're not a beer drinker.

Buy the low, small beer in 12-ounce bottles or cans at any Princeton liquor store. It was due to arrive this week: if the truck was delayed, be patient.

SCHOOL? YOU'RE KIDDING

Want to Bet? We heard a young lass, crazed by the heat, possibly, announce that she was looking forward to the first day of school. She might just as well: it will come anyway. She may, of course, have been thinking of all the new clothes she would have to have in order to study properly and it is with this need in mind that we take you—and the girl—to Allen's.

At this shop, you can find school clothes for people whose only homework is finger painting, right on up to calculus for advanced figures. We suspect that the finger painters will want the pyramid of a smock in pale grey with a blue pocket and a green pocket and a grey and white gingham underblouse with white ruffled collar and cuff.

Another smock in ticking has "Stop" "Look" and "Listen" on each of three pockets and traffic signals across the yoke.

Older painters will choose one of the terribly sophisticated sweater dresses like the parakeet blue (this color is everywhere this year: they called it "peacock" when we were in school) shirt dress with flowered braid trim and a short-sleeved orlon sweater with the same trim. $8.95 for 7-14 size. A second sweater dress i smoked plaid with rickrack trim on the red orlon sweater.

For three to six-x sizes there is an ensemble of orlon and wool with dusty pink, blue, rust and violet overlaid threads, like embroidery, all over the surface. Box-pleated skirt, collared jacket, slacks and separate skirts.

A long sleeved pullover in emerald or peacock has a collar and three-button closing. This one lines up through teen sizes. So does an orlon cardigan with a large, Shetland-like stitch.

You'll find the usual clan and not-so-clan plaids in skirts and kilts, and hip-stitched box pleats in that peacock blue and a lively magenta. On the teen side, skirts feature full gathers, wild plaids, boxpleats, and straight and narrow solids. To wear with, Allen's has a deep turtle neck cardigan in popcorn stitch with no cuffs, but enough collar to make up for the lack. In peacock and pale camel for $12.98.

Ship 'n Shore has more blouses than you knew existed: Oxford button-downs in deep oxblood mahogany, dark orange, magenta or pink. Gold cotton with a dandy ruffle of embroidery edging the sleeve. Dark shrits in paisley, button

York production. A young actor in his early 20's, Mr Reinholt impressed Princeton audiences this summer with his portrayal of Clov in the Princeton Players' "Endgame," his interpretation of the young hussar in "Great Catherine" and his school teacher in Ibsen's "Lady From the Sea." It was his work in these summer productions that caught the eye of Mr Duncan and led the producer to sign him.

A third player who will be remembered by Princeton audiences is Ted Grover, who appeared with the APA company in the fall in "Man and Superman."

Tyler Gatchell of Princeton will serve as the Duncan-Minor house manager.

Actually, Mr Duncan and Mr. Minor had their Shaw all set and ready to go last spring, but they held off their opening because they wanted to use the Sheridan Square Theatre and it was then occupied by "Leave It To Jane." The Sheridan Square Theatre seats 185 spectators in a three-quarter arrangement, that is, on three sides of the rectangular stage.

DOCTOR HUNTER: Ina Balin stars as the nurse-after-a-doctor in "The Young Doctors" at the Playhouse now through Tuesday.

Last spring, Mr Duncan announced his plans to take John Becker's adaptation of the W H Auden "Age of Anxiety" to New York for off-Broadway audiences.

At present, Mr Becker is searching for a suitable proscenium theatre in which to mount "Age of Anxiety" and the opening will be deferred until the right theatre is available, Mr. Duncan says.

Another problem for "Age" is capital. At present, Mr. Duncan says that the producers have about a third of the $15,000 required to produce Mr. Becker's adaptation. A backer's "audition" will be announced shortly for Princeton, and another one will be held for residents of Trenton.

"The Misalliance" production will have a $12,500 budget.

IT'S "FANTASTICK"

For Second Week. "The Fantasticks", a sprightly musical, will continue at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, for a second week, closing Saturday, September 16. Ed Ames of the Ames Brothers and Maryls Watters are co-stars in the tuneful show.

Following "The Fantasticks", producer Michael Ellis will present his fifth and final new script of the season, S. J. Perelman's comedy, "The Beauty Part", starring Bert Lahr. The new comedy will run for two weeks starting Monday, September 18.

"The Beauty Part" disposes in comic fashion, of the American belief that everybody ought to spend his spare time creatively. Mr. Perelman disagrees.

The day after "The Beauty Part" opens, Simon & Schuster will publish "The Bising Gorge", a new collection of Perelman's magazine pieces.

Michael Ellis has received nationwide publicity for his policy of presenting new scripts to summer audiences. Five new plays were mounted at the Bucks County Playhouse this summer under his aegis. They were "The Interpreter", "Two Queens of Love and Beauty", "A Man Around the House", "A Whiff of Melancholy" and the Perelman work.

In the course of his eight seasons at Bucks County, Ellis has introduced approximately 35 new plays, including the current Broadway comedy, "Come Blow Your Horn", which played in New Hope last summer.

LIBERACE APPEARING

At Music Circus. For the final attraction at the Music Circus, Lambertville, St. John Terrell is now presenting Liberace, who will appear through Sunday, with shows at 6 and 9.30 p.m. Saturday, 8.40 p.m. Friday, 7:30 p.m. Sunday and two special matinees Thursday and Sunday at 2 30 p.m.

Appearing with the pianist, who is making his music Circus debut, are soprano Janet Medlin and Anden's Poodles. Liberace first won acclaim as a pianist at the age of 7, and made his adult debut in such arenas as Madison Square Garden, San Francisco's Cow Palace, London's Albert Hall and the Palladium.

Paul Lepard, 206 Nassau Street, school teacher: I can't think of any reason why they shouldn't. Certainly it would help better employee-management relations. Also, if it means it would increase efficiency and lower the cost of production, as often happens with profit-sharing programs, then this would be to the advantage of both the company and the employee. I know some people who work for companies which share their profits and they are quite happy with the results.

Mrs. Walter Margerum, Highway 27, housewife: Yes, I think they should. It would put more money into circulation which, I feel, is a good thing. Prices have gone up so high that people are afraid to buy too much. It would help the companies by reducing their corporate income taxes.

David Walker, 106 Battle Road Circle, student, University of North Carolina: Yes, I do. I think corporations have grown so huge in this country that capitalism has reached the point where the worker has lost conception of his own individuality. This way is more socialistic, which has its good points.

Mrs. Gertrude Williams, 99 Dempsey Avenue, housewife: Yes. I think on a merit basis it would be O.K. By merit I mean those individuals who have worked for the company for a number of years and have shown they are conscientious workers. This would also serve as an incentive. But I also feel that the base salary should not be lowered as a result of any profit-sharing plan. I have seen this happen students still further.

● Social Studies. The department is preparing recommendations on course offerings and requirements.

● Languages. The visiting French teacher made splendid contributions, particularly in third and fourth year courses. The new elementary Russian course was successful: all but one of the students will go on to Russian II this year. The new third-year German course was also a success.

An impressive tape library has been assembled by the language laboratory. Seventeen of the 34 "unselected" students who took College Board language comprehension tests at the end of the year made the highest possible scores.

● Business. The Cooperative Plan of work experience began its 50th year in February with seven students. All received jobs after graduation.

Elementary School. At Nassau Street, Dr Stroup reports, the new basic reading program will be extended into the middle grades this year. Special emphasis was placed on writing skills last year, and a re-evaluation of the spelling program is planned for this year. "Our present spelling program, while generally good, is inadequate for the the advanced pupil."

The Nassau Street guidance program is also under examination, Dr. Stroup reports. Teachers will use this year a six-period reporting system, inaugurated last year with success at Witherspoon School.

At Nassau Street, the new, longer school day will be used for reading and mathematics, Dr Stroup says. In a final comment on the instruction given at the Borough's elementary school, Dr Stroup says that battery medians in standardized achievement tests show all grades running well above national norms.

Junior High School. The expansion of the library was the big gain made at Witherspoon, Dr Stroup reports. The school board obtained a full-time professional librarian, and kept the library open before and after school hours, resulting in 22 visits per student over the entire year.

A library council of 16 students was formed to help classmates use the library, and all classes received instruction in library usage.

Preliminary work on the girls curriculum will begin this year at Witherspoon, and the mathematics program will be studied and refined. The school completed in June its third year of affiliation with the Yale mathematics program.

A high school teacher devoted half-time last year to studying the transition between Witherspoon French and High School French. Changes in the science curriculum are preparing the way for a first course in physics at the ninth grade level.

A full-time guidance counsellor will be added to the Witherspoon staff this year, Dr. Stroup reports. The school matched Nassau Street in its nationwide showing: Form M of the Stanford Achievement Test was given to all students and all norms were well ahead of national figures.

Money. On the financial side, Dr. Stroup reports that the school system spent $1,530,815.34. The budget was $1,507,806.48. The overspent $23,008.86 is a bookkeeping chimera resulting from the fact that the Board went into reserve to re-wire the High School auditorium, an expense which had to be charged against the 1960-61 budget.

The cafeteria lost $5,148.90. This year, the National School Lunch Program is expected to ease this situation, Dr. Stroup reports.

He also announced that the purchase of a snow-plow jeep has cut snow-removal costs by $350. The school truck was traded in for the jeep and the total purchase was $2650. There was, in addition, an unanticipated item for water pipes at Nassau Street school.

The Board has a reserve of $96,283.02, close to the figure of $100,000 which is kept as a safe reserve for a budget of one and one-half million.

SIX TEACHERS NAMED

To Posts in Borough. Six new teachers were appointed at Tuesday night's session of the Borough Board of Education, while the resignations of another three were accepted. The majority of the changes came in the Princeton High School English department.

The new teachers include Miss Dorothy Creager, to teach English at Witherspoon School; Mrs. Beatrice Rice, home economics; and William Cook, Mrs. Sue Walker, Mrs. Linda Ray Smith and Mrs. Constance Hickle, all High School English.

Those resigning included Michael Maddock, Mrs. Wilma Gamon and Mrs. Cecelia Dewry. They were all High School English teachers.

RECORD ENROLLMENT

Miss Fine's Ready to Open. Miss Fine's School will have a record enrollment of 352 when it opens for its 63rd year next week. Last year, 348 students attended the school, while a decade ago the figure was 248.

Classes will begin at 8.20

NEW ON MUSIC FACULTY: Richard Chronister has joined the New School for Music Study.

SCHOOL NAMES TEACHER

To Piano Faculty. Richard Chronister, formerly chairman of piano pedagogy in the music school of the University of Tulsa, Oklahoma, has been appointed to the piano faculty of the New School for Music Study, according to an announcement made this week by Frances Clark, director of the school.

A former member of Miss Clark's piano faculty at Westminster Choir College, Mr. Chronister did post-graduate work in piano pedagogy with Miss Clark at Westminster after receiving his bachelor and master's degrees in music from the University of Tulsa.

He has also served as chairman of the junior department of the piano faculty at Westminster and has participated, for three summers, in a nationwide tour of one-day workshops on the Frances Clark Library for Piano Students.

In his new post, he will serve as supervisor of group instruction in the junior department, and as instructor of pedagogy in the professional department.

Pedagogy classes in the professional department at the school have begun, and over 12 teachers from various parts of the country have enrolled in the 10-month course. In addition to Mr. Chronister, and Miss Clark, the pedagogy teachers are Miss Doris Martin and Miss Elvina Truman. Classes and private lessons in the junior department will begin Thursday, September 21.

AIR RIFLES FOUND

In Youth's Car. Steven E. Hinds, 19, of 227½ John Street, was charged with illegal possession of air rifles after three such weapons were found concealed in his car by the Borough police Thursday morning. Hinds was released upon posting $200 bail and will appear before the Magistrate on Monday.

The guns were discovered during a check that was prompted when Ptl. Thomas J. Procaccino noticed Hinds' car, parked on Nassau Street near Witherspoon, had not complied with state inspection requirements. The car was being operated at the time by David T. Graham, 17, of 206 Birch Avenue. No charges were lodged against him.

SCOTIA LODGE TO MEET

Members Attend Convention. Thistle Lodge No. 220, Daughters of Scotia will meet this Friday at 8 p.m. in the Odd Fellows Hall, 231½ Witherspoon, with Chief Daughter Mrs. Joseph MacLean presiding and Mrs. Gladys Wheeler in charge of refreshments.

Mrs. James McDowall, past Chief Daughter, will represent the Lodge as delegate at the annual convention in Miami September 18 to 21. Also attending the convention will be Mrs. John Henderson (alternate delegate), Mrs. MacLean, Mrs. David Dunvan, Mrs. David Toole, Mrs. Frank Osborn, Mrs. John Stewart, Mrs. John Dempsey, Miss Wheeler, Mrs. J. Heudry Wheeler, Mrs. Richard Carroll and Miss Ida Gregor.

CHILDREN'S ART SHOWN

At Studio-on-Canal. Paintings done over the summer by 7-to-12-years-olds in the art classes at the Studio-on-the-Canal will be exhibited at the Studio starting this Sunday and continuing through September 17. Hours Sunday will be 2-5 p.m. After that, hours will be 3-5 p.m. and 6-8 p.m.

In addition, there will be an exhibit of paintings by the Studio's art instructors, Rex Goreleigh, who is director of the Studio; Hughie Lee-Smith and Vincent Ceglia. Mr. Lee-Smith's paintings have been lent through the courtesy of the Janet Nessler Gallery, New York.

THE LITTLE BROOK THAT WAS SO PLEASANT: Three years ago a TOWN TOPICS report could call Harry's Brook "a quiet oasis in the midst of a bustling town," but today the brook presents such problems as this stagnant, scum-covered pool just above Locust Lane and rapid flooding at the slightest provocation. The Borough and Township hope to do something about this lovely stream turned menace. (Staff Photo)

Fall and winter classes for the sixth season of the Studio will open Monday, September 18. For the beginner and the advanced student there will be courses in oil and watercolor, sketching, landscape, still life, life classes and ceramics. A commercial art workshop will also be offered.

SOMETHING IS MISSING

And It's Not The Motor. When William J. Warren of 23 S. Stanworth Drive tried to start his car Wednesday evening, the motor turned over but the car wouldn't move.

Mr. Warren called a mechanic, who reported something was missing—the drive shaft. Someone had stolen it from Mr. Warren's 1949 Ford coupe which was parked in front of his apartment.

CYCLIST FALLS

Trying To Avoid Truck. Burt Bronk, 25, of 414-D Devereux Avenue, fell to the pavement Thursday after swerving his bicycle to avoid hitting a truck pulling out from the curb on Prospect Avenue Extension.

Mr. Bronk sustained brush burns to his left elbow and right hand but refused to seek hospital aid. The driver of the truck was Donald E. Frounfelker, 27, of Trenton.

FOUR HOMES ENTERED

In Towoship. The first "breaking and entering" violations in Princeton Township in many months occurred durthe last two weeks when four homes were looted and vandalized.

The home of R. M. Green on The Great Road was entered sometime between August 18 and 24, according to Township police. On August 25, the home of Curt Rosenblad, 7 Edgerstoune, was broken into and a few days later, on August 29, burglars entered the home of Joseph Christen, 661 Prospect Avenue Extension. Last Thursday, the home of G. Vietor Davis, North Road, was entered.

The amount of goods stolen is undetermined, according to police. The investigation is continuing.

FAMILY TREE INCLUDED

In Mershon Will. A detailed genealogy was included in Irving Mershon's will, admitted to probate by Surrogate John E. Curry last week. "For the benefit of a genealogist in the years to come," Mr. Mershon traced his ancestry back to Henri Marchand, his great-great-great-great grandfather, who came from France to what is now Princeton in 1685.

Mr. Mershon, who died August 15, was a descendant of Richard Stockton, the builder of Morven, and of the Warren and Wright fam-

BUSINESS In Princeton

TWO SCIENCE FIRMS HERE

Techne, Dorsett Move In. Two more scientific firms announced their arrival in Princeton over the past week. Techne (Cambridge) Ltd. has occupied the former Penns Neck Community Club on Route 1, while the Engineering and Research Division of Dorsett Electronics, Inc., has established an office at 195 Nassau Street.

Techne, which has its headquarters in Cambridge, England, plans to begin assembling scientific measuring instruments immediately. Dorsett has still to recruit a staff and find a permanent home.

William J. Ross, managing director of Techne, is in charge of establishing the firm's American branch, with Anthony R. Cook scheduled to take over as head of the branch. In the past three years the firm did some $500,000 worth of business in the United States, all of which will now be handled through the Princeton branch.

Techne's products include a variety of scientific instruments ranging from a device to maintain a constant water level in a tank to a "two-circle optical goniometer" which measures interfacial angles of crystals. Mr. Ross hopes to hire additional personnel to help assemble the firm's first shipment of constant temperature maintaining units.

Dorsett's Princeton division has been established as a separate corporation, with Joseph A. Dougherty, president of Joseph A. Dougherty Associates Inc., a public relations counselling firm, as president. The first project will be the development of weapons systems for limited warfare, microwave antennas and thermoelectric cooling devices.

Dorsett is a diversified electronics firm with headquarters in Norman, Okla., and branches in Colorado, Chicago and California. The location of the new Engineering and Research Division represents a great advantage in attracting engineering talent, in addition to placing the company in the midst of the East Coast technological complex, according to Lloyd C. Dorsett, company president.

ORC HAS RECORD YEAR

Best in History. Billings of $2,029,000 for the 1961 fiscal year have been reported by Opinion Research Corporation, making 1961 the best year in the company's 22-year history, according to Joseph C. Bevis, chairman of the board.

The 1961 figure represents a 13 percent increase over 1960 and a 20 percent rise over 1959, Mr. Bevis said, pointing out that many organizations similar to ORC suffered billing reductions in 1961 due to the recession. Because of the successful year, employee bonuses have been distributed, Mr. Bevis announced.

Walter G. Barlow, president of ORC, cited studies of investment image and corporate image as important factors in the company's growth. At the annual employee meeting, Leonard F. Newton, research executive, received a watch marking his tenth anniversary with ORC.

ADLERMAN MOVES

To 9 Spring Street. After serving the Princeton area for 20 years from two offices on Witherspoon Street, the most recent at 42 Witherspoon, the Adlerman Service Agency has moved around the corner to 9 Spring Street.

The new home for the agency has complete wooden paneling, all new furniture, and air-conditioning for its one general, and two private offices. Indirect lighting fixtures hang from a ceiling that has been dropped from 14 to 10 feet.

The agency offers complete service in the areas of accounting, insurance and real estate. It is owned by Mel Adlerman and Morris Click.

ilies, Quakers who came to the Stony Brook area in 1696. His great-great-great-grandfather served in the Revolutionary War.

The estate was left to his widow, Mrs. Grace Lucie Olmstead Mershon of 159 Nassau Street, with two suggested bequests. Mr. Mershon asked his wife to leave her brother an amount equal to the funds inherited from her father and mother, and to bequeath his secretary, A. Elizabeth Frederick of West Windsor Township, the unexpended portion of his estate representing investments in real estate and personal property.

In his will, Mr. Mershon cited Miss Frederick's faithful service for many years, her upright character, integrity and loyalty, and noted he had made no pension arrangement for her.

DRIVER HITS WALL

On Great Road. Township police issued a summons for careless driving to Mrs. Charles E. Cunningham, 31, of Hopewell after she missed the curve, driving south on The Great Road, and crashed into the stone wall bordering the property of William Kiefer.

Police say that Mrs. Cunningham, travelling along the road at 3.30 a.m. Friday, crossed into the north bound lane as she rounded the curve, and stopped against Mr. Keifer's wall, damaging it and some shrubbery. There were no skid marks.

HELP US TO HELP OTHERS

Says Princeton Rescue Squad. To keep pace with the ever-growing Princeton community, the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad plans a larger building this year on property it has purchased on North Harrison Street. Accordingly, the organization is combining its building fund with its annual drive.

In addition to outgrowing its present home in the No. 1 Firehouse on Chestnut Street, the First Aid and Rescue Squad has greatly expanded its equipment and operations in order to handle its emergency rescue work. The volunteer members of the group are ready to serve the people in Princeton and the surrounding area 24 hours a day.

The group is sustained in its work by contributions. The public is asked to continue its financial support by mailing checks to the Princeton Ambulance Fund. Contributions are tax deductible.

If in need of an ambulance or rescue unit, call the organization's dispatcher at WA 4-0496. Statistics for the group in 1960 include 708 calls, 2273 man-hours, 9730 miles travelled, and 79 out-of-town calls.

"Money and Music," a series of four weekly musical offerings, will be given by Princeton Bank and Trust at 8 p.m. on successive Wednesdays, starting October 4, in the auditorium of Princeton High School.

The unusual juxtaposition of money and music will feature concerts by the Columbus Boychoir, a chamber orchestra, the Westminster Choir and the Princeton University Glee Club, plus a discussion of "The Business Outlook for 1962," "The Stock Market," "Estate Planning" and "Cave Man to Space Man."

There is no charge for the forum-music series. Each participant will receive as a gift a notebook and a ballpoint pen, the notebook designed for writing down the questions which may be asked of the speaker following each talk.

Those interested in attending the weekly sessions are asked to call at the bank's main office, 12 Nassau, or clip the coupon on page 19 of this issue of TOWN TOPICS.

SMALL BUT MAGNIFICENT

Scheide Library Evokes Awe. The man who comes to Princeton for the first time is apt to be a student or, if he is not, he is likely to be a man who respects and venerates scholarship and who decides to live in Princeton so that he can be part of a community in which the written word and the thought behind it are held in highest regard.

William H. Scheide is both. As an undergraduate, he was a scholar. As a resident, he has enriched Princeton by bringing to the University's Firestone Library the magnificent 90-year-old Scheide Library consisting of works whose words have most influenced the development of western culture, works exemplifying the mass culture that followed the invention of the printing press.

The 3,000 volumes have been housed, since September, 1959, in a small room, about the Firestone. About 500 more, mostly manuscripts, are in storage.

It is a small room, about the size of a man's study, furnished with the pleasant rugs and old leather chairs and the fine dark bookcases that were in the original Scheide library in Titusville, Pennsylvania, before Mr. Scheide moved his inheritance to Firestone. Mrs. Mina R. Bryan is the librarian in charge.

At present, the collection may be used by scholars connected with the University and by other researchers with proper credentials. A catalogue of subjects, title and author is now being compiled.

Includes 250 Bibles. The Scheide collection is known as a selective, rather than a comprehensive library; that is, it does not have all the books written on a single subject. Because of the impact of the printed Bible upon the mind of Western man, however, the library does have an intensive Bible collection including over 250 Bibles from every land and tongue and era.

Among these is, of course, the Library's treasure: the 42-line, or Gutenberg Bible. Only 14 of these Bibles exist today in the United States and only 46 in the world.

In addition, there are translations into Slavonic, Chinese, Hawaiian, Tahitian, Bohemian and Arabic of Old or New Testaments or both, and most of the great polyglot Bibles in which the scriptures were written in half a dozen languages. One of these is a massive Spanish polyglot, its binding deep rust-black with age, the first polyglot Bible ever printed, 445 years old.

The privileged guests of the Scheide Library may find that, aside from the great Gutenberg, on display last fall in Firestone, the most memorable of the Scheide Bibles is a fragment, in Latin, from an English Bible of the ninth century. Grey, torn, but with its characters bold and legible to the mind that can read them, this fragment of time evokes a feeling of awe, and yet a sense of relationship. It is by no means the oldest written word in the collection, however, a Sumerian clay cone from the time of Nebuchanezzar, about 2350 B.C. rests in a glass case by the library door.

A layman without a scholar's knowledge but with an aesthetic appreciation for old volumes may find the most delightful to be a 15th century Book of Hours from Belgium, preserved as immaculately as though it were still in the hands of the princess for whom it was made, or a 13th century manuscript Bible from France, whose exquisite golds, blues and reds are as luminous today as they were 700 years ago.

The paper used centuries ago, by the way, was strong and fine because nobody knew how to make it any other way. It's the later books, the ones made in the last two or three centuries, whose paper becomes yellow and frail with age. Many a 15th century volume is in better shape than an early 19th century one.

Copernicus to Einstein. The range of the Scheide library carries it beyond the church into the world of secular philosophy, exploration, science, literature. Here, behind glass doors, rowed beside each other as though these were ordinary bookshelves, are the first editions of Copernicus, Galileo, Newton, Darwin, Adam Smith and Karl Marx, Kant and Rousseau, and from our own day, Einstein "The Meaning of Relativity" and Smyth "Atomic Energy for Military Purposes."

The library is one of the few important collections in this country still privately owned and still in its original family. The library was started by Mr. Scheide's grandfather. Story, this page.

The Scheide "Social Contract" is almost the only Rousseau edition which Princeton University does not have. "Actually, the collection fits in here at Firestone quite well," says Mrs. Bryan with quiet pride.

The largest part of the library is concerned with the discovery and development of America, and in this section the scholar will find two Latin editions of the Columbus Letter, printed in Rome in 1493, collections of voyages and travels, the reports of John Smith and William Penn and products of the early presses of Pennsylvania, Virginia and New York.

The value of the Scheide collection as a whole, or of individual parts of it has never been publicized. Such everyday matters as insurance become family ridiculous when one is dealing with a Gutenberg Bible or the first four Folios of Shakespeare or a Biblical papyrus from the third century.

Started 90 Years Ago. The collection was started about 90 years ago by William T. Scheide, the grandfather of the present William Sheide. As a young engineer in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, he bought books because he loved to read and finally, when he was only 40, he retired in order to read and to buy "old books."

At first, he paid no attention to condition or edition he bought only what interested him. Then, he began to specialize in art books, medieval law and literature and medieval documents.

"About 15 percent of the present collection is my grandfather's," Mr. Scheide estimates, "most of it—about 80 per cent—was assembled by my father, John Scheide. I don't suppose I've bought more than about five percent myself: a Syriac New Testament from 1222, and a very important piece of typography from 1459. It's a book on the origin and meaning of ecclesiastic ceremonies, and it's important because it's the first book that has a date in it. I bought that one five or six years ago."

Mr. Scheide is, of course, a musician and an expert on Bach and the collection includes a Bach autograph of the cantata 118, Beethoven's sketches for the piano sonata, opus 106 and the original score of "Das Rheingold."

Mrs. Bryan reads the book catalogues and informs Mr. Scheide about volumes and manuscripts that he might be interested in buying, but it is the role of guardian and custodian, rather than the role of collector, that Mr. Scheide has assumed.

"These books have survived for a thousand years," he says, "and we have a moral obligation to keep them surviving."

ZONING CHANGES AHEAD

West Windsor Board to Meet. The West Windsor Planning Board will meet Friday to consider new minimum requirements for garden apartments. The special public meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Town Hall.

Proposed changes in the zoning ordinance include increasing the minimum lot area per apartment, decreasing the number of apartments per acre and increasing the minimum square footage of habitable floor area. The municipality has received three requests for permits to build garden apartments, one of which is now pending before the zoning board.

All changes come under Section IV, 6, A-1 of the zoning ordinance. They include:

- Increasing the minimum lot area from 3000 to 6000 square feet per apartment.
- Reducing the number of net apartments per acre from 14 to 7.
- Setting a minimum of 50 feet for front yards and of 20 feet for rear and side yards, except when adjoining land is used or intended to be used for residential purposes, when a 50 foot minimum for rear and side yards will prevail.
- Increasing the habitable floor area minimum from 550 to 650 square feet for one bedroom apartments, and from 700 to 800 for two bedroom apartments.
- Adding a requirement that access be by "existing public roads sufficient to accommodate a traffic generated by the special use."

AUXILIARY WILL MEET

Lady Lions to Gather. The Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton Lions Club will hold its first meeting of the season at the Nassau Inn Monday at 6:30. Martin Mains will be the speaker.

Officers for the year are Mrs. George Haheeb, president; Mrs. J. V. Skillman, vice-president; Mrs. Henry Geisenhoner, treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Cooper, secretary.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

In West Windsor. Charles E. Farrington and Edward J. Sweeney, Democratic candidates for re-election to the Assembly, will be the speakers at the next meeting of the West Windsor Township Democratic Club to be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Princeton Junction Firehouse.

The subject of the evening, to be covered by both candidates, will be "The Duty of a Party in Selecting a Candidate." Robert P. Frandsen, president of the club and candidate for Township Committeeman, will preside.

MARRIAGE COURSE SET

By Planned Parenthood. A four-lecture course, "Preparation for Marriage", will begin on Tuesday, September 19, under the joint sponsorship of the Planned Parenthood Association of the Mercer Area and the Council of Churches of Greater Trenton. Physicians, ministers and sociologists will give the lectures, and will answer questions following each of the talks.

People vs. Cars and Taxes

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am bold to write to you about the subject of urban renewal. I do so with full knowledge that my background in this matter is less extensive both in depth and time than that of Dr. Lester, whose articulate statement appeared in last week's Town Topics. It is my hope that neither this deficiency nor my residency in the Township will disqualify my comments or blunt their argument.

There can be little quarrel with Dr Lester's position if one begins and ends with his premises and goals. I respectfully submit that what he does not say is germane to the case for or against urban renewal in Princeton. Further, it seems clear that public opposition should not be directed against urban renewal per se, as it seems to be, but rather against the root of the local problem, which is the unfortunate way that the situation has developed. Please allow me to briefly relate these points.

Two essential ingredients of urban renewal planning, according to a brochure on the subject issued by the federal government, are 1) The presence of a community (master) plan, and 2) Local support for the urban renewal project under consideration. Let us touch on these points.

A master plan for the Borough of Princeton has existed for some time. Within the last few years it has been revised with the help of professional planners.

The resultant volume rests, among other places, in the library for anyone to read. But it has not been adopted.

It contains many controversial parts. It is my contention that this master plan should be debated, rewritten if necessary, and adopted before pieces of it are acted upon.

The public deserves to know, especially in the case of urban renewal projects, how each project fits in with the entire plan. If the public has adopted a master plan enthusiastically, it should and would support the segments. If, on the other hand, some of the goals and methods described in the revised plan are not what Princeton wants, then these major questions should be decided before some preliminary action complicates or prejudices future action.

More important than this, however, is the question of people and their support for any plan or action. Imagine the difference in the present case if the people that were going to be affected by the urban renewal plan had been brought in to help with the planning instead of being confronted with crisis!

Imagine the ideas and enthusiam that such people could generate! And most important, imagine what might have been the result if the goals of urban renewal had been exactly reversed—if the primary object was to improve housing conditions, the secondary object to put in a through street, and the third object to keep the tax rate down. What a difference this order of priorities would make in the public support so crucially needed.

The director of the Ford Foundation's public affairs program, in a recent speech to the Institute of Traffic Engineers, said ". . . . . the emphasis on real estate and physical plant has obscured the humane purpose of urban down or with little notched collars.

Almost forgot the boys. Sweaters this fall start with the big diamond argyle orlon in gold, black and white with classic crew neck and knit wrists done in black. A pale caramel with V-neck has black and rust designs knit in a band around neck and waist.

Cotton long-sleeved shirts at $3.98 are mostly slipovers, made out of paisley or plaid in somewhat quieter patterns than previous years. For $2.98, a cotton flannel comes in small medallion print, plaid or Tattersall. Outer packets, some reversible, follow the poplin-lined-with-flannel tradition. How can you go wrong?

WHY A NEW MODEL?

Maytag Wants to Know. When you have a good thing, leave it alone Maytag, a washing machine maker, in case you've forgotten, operates on this sterling principle and rarely brings out a new model unless it really has something to say.

For example, the new Maytag you buy this fall at Nassau Service, Route 206, has been on the market for four years. The only addition for fall, 1961, is a new automatic cold rinse By following this policy, the company not only refuses to pay obeisance to obsolescence, but also finds it easier to maintain quality control at the factory. This means less service worry for the consumer, which is you.

Maytag makes five models. There is now a low-priced metered fill machine, and a low-priced electronic control dryer.

Nassau Service also carries Whirlpool's complete line, ranging from the 24-inch economy size, two-cycle, nine-pound machine, to the totally automatic ten-pounder with more speeds to choose from.

A portable Whirlpool dishwasher comes with a 72-piece set of silverware and, for some arcane reason, a large doll in a party dress. Hotpoint's new portable dishwasher is a three-cycle affair geared to pots and pans, daily dishes and fine china. It has a Formica top. Whirlpool and Kitchenaids are made to install. No dolls with these.

Kelvinator makes the Foodcrama—a refrigerator and a freezer together in an upright unit 41 inches wide, with about a third of the width devoted to the freezer and two-thirds to the ice box. Freezer is six cubic feet, refrigerator is 12, each with separate doors.

Whirlpool's refrigerator has an ice-measure device whose hook-up is included in the price. You used to have to pay a plumber to attach it. Whirlpool joins Philco, Hotpoint and Kelvinator in producing self-defrosting refrigerators. And just in time for school, too development . . . . . the result of the misdirected emphasis is that the civilizing and enobling function of the city, mainly its job of turning second class newcomers into first class citizens, is downgraded into pious pronouncements and last place priorities . . ."

I believe that this statement, with the proper rephrasing to conform to the Princeton situation, is a fair one. I do not believe that those responsible for the present plan and its priorities conceived them deliberately or with malice, but rather by simply failing to think about people as carefully as cars and taxes. It is still not too late to change the emphasis.

Urban Renewal Questioned.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

If urban renewal were merely a method for securing federal aid in the necessary realignment of Jackson Street, there might be little reason for dissent. But the question is not whether we shall or shall not seek federal aid. (Other communities probably have a better claim to limited federal funds than Princeton has.)

What is alarming and essentially dishonest in the proposal is the apparent intention "legally" to acquire for the Borough private land which has become prime for business expansion. The principle by which this is justified is the so-called "deleterious use" formula. This means that the land in question would produce more tax revenue if it were properly developed. The method for acquiring control of this land is urban renewal.

The proposal is dishonest for several reasons. 1) The "blighted" area is owned for the most part by Palmer Square, Inc who have allowed the present "blight" to develop. A simple land trade between Borough and PSI would permit the realignment of Jackson Street. 2) The buildings on Witherspoon Street between Hulfish and Jackson are not condemned as blight by anyone. 3) The principle of deleterious use is a subterfuge for what amounts to economic aggression.

This is part and parcel of the same kind of imperialism under-developed countries of the world so bitterly resent. To pay the dispossessed a "fair market value" for their homes and to offer home-owners public housing in exchange for their valuable property can scarcely be called just or honest.

Where in Princeton can home-owners in the Witherspoon-John-Green Street area find equally convenient, respectable property which they can afford (or will be permitted) to buy? If the deleterious use formula is to become operative, why not let it strike first the churches on Nassau Street, which produce no revenue for the borough.

Urban renewal is alarming because it implies a concept of Princeton-in-the-future (represented by the little-known Master Plan) with which many Princetonians disagree. Would a strong central business district solve problems which consolidation of Borough and Township with smaller less centralized business districts would not solve as well?

Who wants to see Palmer Square architecture extend down Witherspoon Street? What kinds of services would the Borough like to perform which it is now unable to afford? Do we want a Princeton composed exclusively of the financially elite?

Princeton is growing. The question is how this growth is to be directed.

Every Borough resident owes it to himself and the community to become acquainted with the Master Plan (copies in the Firestone and Public libraries). The immediate issue of urban renewal deserves full discussion in the coming local election campaign.

Report from THE MAYOR

Safety Effort. September is a month when special efforts must be made to emphasize safety. As schools open there will be many more pedestrians and bicyclists in town, many of them very young ones for whom automobile traffic can pose very special hazards.

The Borough Traffic Safety Committee under its Chairman, Magistrate Tams, will be working this month to complete its study and recommendations on the special bike routes it has been considering. Each of us can help by exercising special caution while driving.

Ice Skating. The Labor Day weekend added a few more hot days to the summer's total of "scorchers". Earlier last week, the Mayor of Portland, Oregon, Terry D. Schrunk, was listing the virtues of his city which included year-round ice skating.

In addition to skating at the municipal coliseum which also houses conferences, athletic events and trade fairs, Portland boasts an outdoor year-round ice skating rink in a new shopping center which was built as a kind of private "urban renewal" project. Mayor Schrunk, who mentioned that he served in the Navy with Governor Meyner, also pointed with pride in his 110-year old city to a new municipal zoo, a program to plant trees in most of the business thoroughfares, and an 84-acre urban renewal area now undergoing rehabilitation and redevelopment.

Among former Princetonians visited in Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Frost and family. Frost has just begun his duties as assistant to president Sullivan (former Princetonian and ETS executive) of Reed College in Portland.

From Bethlehem. Mr. Musa Othman, a supervisor of physical education in the schools of Jordan, was a Princeton visitor over the past weekend. Mr. Othman's English was perfect and his interest in Princeton was keen.

Actually he was here to relax and to get acquainted with American families. He left for Philadelphia to resume his participation in the Foreign Specialists Project sponsored by the Office of Cultural Exchange of the U.S. Department of State.

Mr. Othman's favorite sport—and the number one sport in his country—is soccer. He played in international matches for sixteen years. Now he is concerned with the physical fitness programs in the Hebron and Jerusalem districts in Jordan.

Friday Open House. The regular weekly "Tell it to the Mayor!" sessions will be held on Friday, September 8, and Friday, September 15, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

On the afternoon of Labor Day the Mayor spent a few delightful hours as guest of Princeton Engine Company No. 1 at their annual outing. On the calendar of the coming week: Tuesday's Planning Board session; Wednesday's agenda session of council in preparation for the September meeting of Mayor and Council on Tuesday, September 12, at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall.

ADVERTISING VOLUME is based on results. That's why TOWN TOPICS carries more classified advertising each week in the year than all other Princeton papers combined.

POLITICS SHIFT

Bernstein Appointed. Dr. Marver Bernstein, expert in public administration and the governmental regulation of business, has assumed chairmanship of the department of politics at Princeton, succeeding Dr. William M. Beaney, Jr.

Dr. Beaney will devote half-time during the coming year to the completion of a study on the ways in which Princeton might prepare secondary school teachers and administrators.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin with a doctorate from Princeton, professor Bernstein has had wide experience in state, federal and international governmental affairs. He is one of the few non-lawyers now serving on the Administrative Conference of the United States. As associate staff director of the Special Committee on the Federal Conflict-of-Interest Laws of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, he was one of the authors of the committee's book on conflict of interest and federal service.

Dr. Beaney, who has been on the Princeton faculty since 1949, is an authority on American public law. He has published "The Right to Counsel in American Courts" and, with Dr. A. T. Mason of Princeton, "American Constitutional Law" and "The Supreme Court in a Free Society."

EVEN TEACHERS STUDY

Borough Counts 12. While their students vacationed, 12 Borough teachers spent the summer as pupils themselves. Four administrative staff members and one teacher also participated in special programs over the summer.

The teachers studied everything from physics to history, many of them under fellowships. They attended 11 different universities and colleges, some of them travelling as far as the west coast.

Douglas Coulter, Princeton High School history teacher, studied American history at Stanford University; Henry Drewry, head of the PHS history department, Afro-Asian affairs at Rutgers University; Ronald Gendaszek, modern languages at PHS and Russian at Dartmouth; and Gerald Groninger and Gilbert Mortensen, mathematics at PHS, mathematics at Princeton University.

Also, Paul Inscho, mathematics and physics at PHS, University of the South; Wayne Nelson, biology at PHS, Rutgers University; and John Stewart, head of the PHS science department, physics at Stevens Institute of Technology.

Also, James Messersmith, science at Witherspoon School, physics at Glassboro State College; Mrs. Carol Armstrong, mathematics at PHS, University of New Hampshire; Leonard Waxdeck, biology at PHS, George Washington University; and Miss Antonia Vajk, history at PHS, world history at Northwestern University.

As principal of Nassau Street School, Mrs. Dorothea Lummis attended a two-week workshop for elementary school principals at Rutgers. Dr. Chester Stroup, superintendent of Borough Schools, also participated in the workshop by speaking on "Developing Conceptual Skills for the Principalship."

Two members of the PHS staff participated in special curriculum conferences. William H. Rhodes, principal of PHS, joined with 30 other New Jersey high school principals in a general curriculum planning conference, while Mrs. Catherine Stecchini was included in a small group selected to consider a new high school English curriculum at the United States Office of Education.

Howard Waxwood, principal of the Witherspoon School, attended the National Education Association convention in Atlantic City early in the summer.

George W. Soete of 138 Ewing Street has been appointed Chief Engineer, Centrifugal Pumps of the Worthington corporation in Harrison. A graduate of Princeton University, Mr. Soete was an instructor in mechanical engineering at the University before joining Worthington in 1949. He is a member of the American Societies of Mechanical Engineers, and Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

INCOMING, OUTGOING: Dr. Marver H. Bernstein (left), has been named chairman of the department of politics at Princeton, succeeding Dr. William M. Beaney, Jr.

Six Princeton girls will enter Bryn Mawr this fall. They are: Carol P. Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James I. Armstrong, 50 Springdale Road; Catherine E. de Grazia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. de Grazia, 306 Nassau Street; Daphne B. du Pont, daughter of Mrs. Bernard Peyton of Pretty Brook Road; Gertrude M. Goheen, daughter of President and Mrs. Robert F. Goheen, "Prospect;" Jane S. Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rose, 292 Stockton Street; and Margaret N. Wilber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald N. Wilber of 140 Quaker Road. The Misses Armstrong, Rose and Wilber are graduates of Miss Fine's School; Miss de Grazia of Princeton High School; Miss du Pont of the Foxcroft School, Middleburg, Va.; and Miss Goheen of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Nuroton, Conn.

William F. Greene of 100 Randall Road, has been named Director of Marketing Research and appointed to membership on the Executive Committee of Gallup & Robinson. A 1951 graduate of the University of Iowa, Mr. Green served as a project director in the market research department of Carnation Company prior to joining G&R in 1959. He began his career as an assistant advertising manager for Pillsbury Mills.

Among the 700 students who will enter Lehigh University this fall is James C. Farley Jr. of 192 Varsity Avenue, Penns Neck. Mr. Farley is a graduate of the Hun School where he won letters in basketball and baseball.

Whitney J. Oates, Princeton University Classics Professor, has been named chairman of the New Jersey-Pennsylvania region of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. A classical scholar, Professor Oates founded the program at Princeton in 1945. It has grown from four fellowships in its first year to over 1400 offered in 1961-62.

Two Princeton residents have been named to a 12-man committee which will estimate the Government's manpower needs in foreign affairs for the next decade. The independent committee is headed by former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. The survey is being conducted under the auspices of the Car

The Bridge (September 11-16) succeeds in getting across its primary message that World War II was just as terrible for the Germans as for their victims, but it also does much more. In transmitting his mesage, director Bernhard Wicki tells a truly gripping tale of a group of misguided youths' stubborn resistance before the Americans' seemingly inexorable advance at the close of the war.

The main characters are seven high school boys (all relatively unknown actors) who receive their calls to fight for the Fatherland. Barely inducted, they are assigned to defend their town's bridge until a demolition team can reach it. The determined defense put up by this group, inexperienced in warfare but fired with Hitler's false propaganda, constitutes the heart of the 102-minute film.

As a war film, "The Bridge" cannot be compared to the classic "Bridge on the River Kwai." It is a story of a group, a phemonena, rather than of individual characters and their reactions to the horrors of wars. But when compared to the often-trite war films turned out by Hollywood (now also on the home screen periodically), it stands up well. In German, with English subtitles.

suspect that if doctors really spend this much time treating friends and loved ones, they wouldn't have time for anyone else.

For movie-goers interested in such "hospital confidential" revelations, "The Young Doctors" offers a long list of stars ranging from the experienced Fredric March to the teen-age idol Dick Clark, with Eddie Albert and Ben Gazzara filling the mid-range. Gazzara is in love with a pretty young nurse (Ina Balin) who has a leg tumor—Gazzara says it is benign, while March says it is malignant. Meanwhile, March (who wins out in the tumor argument) makes a mistake in testing the blood of the pregnant wife (Phyllis Love) of intern Clark and has to be bailed out by Albert.

As melodramatic adult fare, the film is technically quite good. But as a study of the problems of the present-day doctor in a large hospital, it is unconvincing.

Ada (September 13-16) is designed to appeal to any woman who is not convinced that her place is in the home. As a man who feels that as a general rule woman's place is in the home, the film draws little approval in this corner.

Susan Hayward stars as the determined girl from the wrong side of the tracks who goes from merely running her husband (portrayed by a properly listless Dean Martin) to virtually directing the government of a southern state. In good melodramatic fashion, Miss Hayward overcomes all obstacles in her steady climb to the political heights. Her victims range from the boss of the local political machine (Wilfred Hyde White) to a group of society women (after listening to their snobbery, she flaunts her past at them, reminding them she is the daughter of a sharecropper).

Although Martin is good as Ada's puppet-like husband for the better part of the 108-minute film, neither Miss Hayward nor White offer reasonable portrayals. Miss Hayward grossly over-plays the title role while White seems rather out of place in the American South with his background as an English actor. In Cinema-Scope and color.

THE GARDEN

The Ballad of Narayama (September 6-9) is an interesting attempt to adapt to the cinematic medium some of the more traditional Japanese art forms.

In particular, writer-director Keisuke Kinoshita has used color photography to do considerably more than simply record scenes, trying instead to produce an emotional impact through the use of unnatural color combinations. For example, at one point the action is presented with black figures against a pink sky.

Other technical aspects of the film show a similar mixture of new and old; the sets are realistic foregrounds combined with painted backdrops; the actors perform realistically at times and stiltedly at others; and a balladeer occasionally interupts the story for a song that advances the plot or comments on the action.

The plot involves a son's fight against an ancient tradition which would have him take his aged mother to the top of a mountain to die. Unfortunately, however, the pace is slow and there is a tendency for the viewer to become absorbed in the technique and lose track of the action.

FARM NEVER LIKE THIS

New Cyanamid Center Is Posh. American Cyanamid's new $9 million Agricultural Center at Clarksville on Route 1 offers the best of everything, right down to private rooms and showers—for animals.

The facilities for swine, cattle, poultry, sheep and other farm animals are, in places, amazingly close to those for the 550 human beings who will ultimately inhabit the center. Although the humans are only beginning to arrive in numbers, many of the animals have lived in their plush quarters for over a year.

The pigs, for example, inhabit clean concrete pens enclosed by fencing made of aluminum tubing. To cool them on particularly hot days, attendants set out lawn sprinklers.

These concrete pens, a feature of all modern swine raising facilities according to a company spokesman, eliminate infections arising from old dirt-floor system. The sprinklers supply the cooling effects of mud, and in abnormally damp weather sawdust is added for comfort.

Pens Attached to Labs. While the pigs live the good life in the separate Swine Experimental Unit, other even luckier animals may lounge in luxury in the special pens attached to the laboratories themselves. The larger animals have inside pens, well heated and lighted, and the smaller ones may receive individual cages in air conditioned rooms with artificial night-day cycles provided by electric timers.

And there is a hospital. Here the animals may be put in individual stalls with yellow walls and near-conventional doors.

The Center also boasts the latest metabolism cages, which make provision for collecting and weighing all excrement. (Most of the other cages and pens have sloped floors for automatic drainage.)

In time, Cyanamid hopes to construct rooms large enough for cows, with complete humidity and temperature control to make studies in adverse environments. Even now there is a cold laboratory which will permit scientists to work at 40-degree temperatures the year around.

From Mice to Cows. When completed, the research center will house animals ranging all the way from mice to cows plus a wide variety of plants. All common livestock, with the exception of horses, will be kept for testing such things as new feeds, while mice, rats, guinea pigs and rabbitts will be kept for experimental purposes.

The chickens and turkeys will live in the separate poultry unit, now undergoing alterations to provide better ventilation. Here the young birds are provided with a temperature-controlled home which looks more like an overgrown garage than the traditional chicken house.

Although the ruminant sheds for cattle and sheep represent less of a departure from the traditional in terms of flooring and feeding arrangements, they offer an intricate gate system for shunting the livestock from pen to pen. Patterned after a Purdue University project, this system provides great flexibility—and again all fences are tubular aluminum.

One of the more interesting experiments conducted in these plush quarters involves the palatability of various feeds. A group of pigs is offered three different feed preparations and an accurate tally is kept of which one is the most popular.

"We are almost as interested in putting out a palatable product as a manufacturer of corn flakes" a staff member explained.

A LOOK AT THE FUTURE

As RCA Tests Highway System. One of the world's most advanced electronic vehicle control and highway safety systems was tested last week at RCA Laboratories before traffic experts from more than a dozen countries.

Demonstrations included rides for the visitors in a specially-equipped car controlled by electrical signals generated in the roadway. The system is built into a test track at RCA's David Sarnoff Research Center here.

Details of the developmental system were described to the visitors by Leslie E. Flory, RCA Laboratories engineer who heads the electronic traffic control developmental work in collaboration with Dr. V. K. Zworykin, honorary vice president of RCA. Present at the demonstration were traffic experts from North and South America, western Europe, Africa, Australia and the Near East.

The basic elements of the system are a series of car-length rectangular wire loops and a continuous guidance cable buried in the pavement of the oval test road, and a chain of transistorized detector circuits at the roadside, each linked to one of the buried loops. The passage of any car over a loop causes a change in current which is detected by the transistorized unit and translated into an electric signal.

During the demonstration, visitors watched the system operate roadside warning lights, count vehicles, measure car speeds and provide central displays of traffic movements. The ultimate use of the system to start, accelerate, brake and steer cars was demonstrated with a car containing special equipment to respond to the signals from the circuits buried in the roadway.

Reservations may be made in writing to Planned Parenthood, 202 Academy Street, Trenton or the Council of Churches of Greater Trenton, West Hanover at Prospect Street.

AID PROGRAM BEGINS

New Fellowships at Princeton. A grant amounting to $45,000 has been given to the Graduate School of Princeton University for the establishment of the Louis E. Wolfson Fellowships, designed to aid graduate students in the areas of the social sciences and humanities.

The Fellowships have been established by the Wolfson Family Foundation, Inc., of Jacksonville, Florida. Under the terms of the grant, two awards will be made each year for nine years to graduates from the southeastern United States.

OPENING AVAILABLE

For School Guard. The Borough is in need of a school crossing guard, according to Chief of Police Raymond A. Mondone.

Any male or female over 21, in good health and a citizen of the United States, is elegible. The pay is $6 a day. Those interested may apply to Chief Mondone at Borough Hall.

SPEAKER WILL APPEAL

For Jewish Aid. Mrs. S. Alexander Brailove, honorary chairman of the National Women's Division of the United Jewish Appeal, will be the speaker at a dessert luncheon to be held by the Women's Division of the Appeal this Thursday at 1 p.m. at the Jewish Center, 435 Nassau.

Mrs. Brailove has been a member of many survey groups which have gone to Israel and she has held several important posts with the United Jewish Appeal. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Percy Siskowitz, WA 4-0591.

TO MAKE APPEAL: Mrs. S. Alexander Brailove, who will speak on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal.

Newcomers Invited

Members of the Newcomers Club and their families will gather this Saturday at 4 for a family picnic to be held on the grounds of Educational Testing Service, Rosedale Road. Members will take their own food and games. Mrs. James C. Boyd, social events chairman of the club, is in charge.

Founded two years ago to welcome new residents of the Princeton area, the Newcomers Club holds monthly meetings and sponsors smaller groups for members interested in books, music, gardening, gourmet cooking, bridge, sports or social service.

The club is sponsored by the YWCA and the first meeting of the fall term will be held there on October 11. Mrs. Harry Cramer, Hopewell, is president for the fall term and Mrs. Howard Brackney, 649 Prospect Street, is membership chairman.

PR DIRECTOR NAMED

For Hughes In County. Peter Carter of 280 Russell Road has been named public relations director of the Mercer County Chapter, Citizens for Hughes, a 21-county organization working for the election of Richard J. Hughes, Democratic candidate for Governor. The appointment was announced by Leighton H. Laughlin, Chairman of the Chapter.

For the past two years, Mr. Carter has been press relations manager for the Celanese Corporation in New York and previously was a member of the public relations staff of Esso Research and Engineering Company. A 1949 magna cum laude graduate of Princeton University, he began his career as a reporter for "The Hartford Courant," and was subsequently associated with the "Newark News."

MARKETEERS TO MEET

In Annual Conference. Farm leaders, food distributors, officials of marketing organizations and representatives of allied agricultural and food industry interests will gather in Princeton on November 6 for the fourth annual New Jersey Marketing Institute.

It is expected that more than 150 persons will attend the Institute, which is sponsored by the state Department of Agriculture and the New Jersey Agricultural Society.

This year's theme will be "Organization—Key to Successful Marketing." During the morning session, representatives of chain and independent food stores will exchange views on trends in retail food marketing. In the

TIGER LOSSES HIGH

Seven More Than Expected. A squad which knew in advance it would lose 17 lettermen—eight of them starters—can ill afford to have seven more players unavailable when the time arrives to begin patching up the gaping holes caused by graduation.

Now in its first week of supervising pre-season practice at the Blairstown training camp, the Princeton football coaching staff is wrestling with the problem created by the unanticipated withdrawal of seven players who were on the 1961 roster last spring. The number is far higher than normal attrition between spring and fall, and at least four of the seven were sure to rank either first or second on the depth chart.

Hoit Is Injured. Roger Hoit, the only Princeton Country Day School alumnus to play varsity football here, has been sidelined for the season by an arm which did not heal perfectly after it was broken a year ago. The 6-1 Deerfield alumnus suffered the fracture in the Brown game last season, but had been counted on heavily for 1961 action at tailback.

Rog had been used both ways last fall, but more frequently on defense than as a ball carrier. Plans had been to alternate him with junior Greg Riley, the latter as tailback and Hoit in the safety position.

Three linemen who figured heavily in 1961 plans became academic casualties. One was senior Russ Tornrose, the only returning tackle who won his letter last fall; the other, Bob Keyes, top prospect to fill the wide-open position at center. Both are out of college.

Still here but on academic probation is 196-lb. Bill Guedel, captain of last year's freshmen and a top line prospect. He was accorded a good chance of earning a starting berth at right guard, where the available material was thin even before he was sidelined by his grades.

Others who had been a part of the coaches' rebuilding plans are tackle candidates John Dietrick and Dennis Keller, the latter, sidelined all last season by a shoulder separation and inactive this fall for the same reason; and Gerald Levisay, a sophomore coming up to the varsity as an end.

Added to the 17 lettermen gone from the good 1960 squad, these seven losses make the problem at Blairstown that much greater. They hit the Tigers at a time when a major rebuilding project is under way, and lend emphasis to the growing belief that the .500 mark may be extremely difficult to achieve during 1961.

KING'S INN WINS

In Softball Playoffs. Back-to-back shutout victories in the finals of the Sportsmen's Softball League playoffs last week gave King's Inn the 1961 championship. Its victim, Ivy Inn, had finished first in the regular season standings and eliminated Hinkson's in the first round while King's Inn was disposing of the Sportsmen.

A sparkling one-hitter by Bob Chambers gave King's Inn a 2-0 decision in the final game. Russ Watson's triple with two aboard in the last of the sixth provided the only runs of the contest, played on Pardee Field. Lou DeMeglio was the losing pitcher.

Earlier in the week, Watson had blanked Ivy Inn, 4-0, George Boccanfuso, substituting for DeMeglio on the mound, was the loser in this game.

Illness in his family prevented DeMeglio from being present. Also missing because of night patrol duty as a Township policeman was Ivy Inn's regular shortstop, Jack Petrone. After losing the first game of the best-of-five series, King's Inn took three in a row to wrap up honors for the 1961 season.

FIRST TEAM STRONG

But Hun Lacks Depth. "We won't have a powerhouse, but we may surprise somebody before the season is over," says Hawley Waterman, head football coach for the Hun School, adding, "We'll hold our own."

Waterman's guarded optimism is backed by 11 returning Hun lettermen. Adding to the appeal is the ideal distribution of this experience: four are backs and the remaining seven, linemen. Behind these lettermen, however, according to Waterman, is a vast void of inexperience which the coaching staff began to attack when practice sessions started this week.

HUN FOOTBALL COACH: Hawley Waterman, starting his sixth year as head football coach of the Hun School team, predicts that the Red and Black will "hold its own" against eight opponents this year.

Sports In Princeton

Lack of depth is a chronic problem for Waterman who is starting his sixth year as head coach. Five of those six seasons have been losing ones, including last year's 3-1-4 record. Less than 200 boys attend Hun. With each student having to make a choice among cross country, soccer or football, Waterman expects no more than 30 to 35 candidates to report for the first practice session.

As a result, Waterman says it is touch and go for him just to be able to field two full varsity teams. Under these conditions, it is almost axiomatic than injury or illness to more than two of Hun's regulars borders on the catastrophic. If any of Waterman's veterans are sidelined this season, particularly in the backfield, Hun is going to be in trouble.

Backfield Proven. The outlook for the backfield is much brighter than that for the line. Four tested players are the sum and substance of a backfield that Waterman admits is "pretty good." All seniors, they are Tim Walsh, quarterback, Gary Grover and Doug Kirk, halfbacks; and Bob Kay, fullback.

This is the fourth year that the 175-pound Walsh has been a member of the Hun squad. The Trenton boy quarterbacked the modified split-T formation employed by Waterman last year and will do the bulk of the Hun passing from the T's rollout and drop back series. "He should be a real good quarterback and leader this year," reported Waterman.

Behind Walsh is Owen 'Tap' Young, a 160-pound junior. Young quarterbacked all of Hun's junior varsity games last fall but has no varsity experience.

Grover Goes. At left halfback for Hun is Princeton's Gary Grover. "The best running back around these parts," says Waterman. Another four-year man, Gary, at 5'9" and 155, is not very big nor does he have exceptional speed. He is a darting, rabbit-type runner. His change of pace and talent for knowing when to cut make him elusive and hard to bring down. "He also throws the running, option pass pretty well," says Waterman.

Opposite Grover at right half is Doug Kirk, six feet, 170 pounds. The fullback in Waterman's scheme of things is former halfback Bob Kay. The 5'11", 185-pound athlete was hampered last fall by an ankle injury and Waterman is hoping he'll be all right this year. Kay transferred to Hun in his junior year.

Sandy Blain, who would have been a starting halfback, is not returning to Hun this year.

Seven returning linemen should represent an experienced nucleus for offensive and defensive line coach Dan Barren to work with. But the majority of these boys, Waterman points out, played second string last year and still need experience.

Savidges Anchor Line. The line will be built around Paul and Pete Savidge, co-captains of the Red and Black. Both are seniors and residents of Lambertville. Pete is a rugged, 5'11", 185-pound four-year veteran center. "If all my players were like Pete," commented Waterman, "I wouldn't have any problems at all."

Brother Paul, 210, plays left tackle. Like all the Savidge brothers—Dave, who co-captained last year's eleven, and Mark, a freshman this year and future Hun quarterback who is 150 pounds already"—Paul is a hard-worknig, determined and proficient competitorfl The other tackle should be Leigh McMakin, a 185-pound senior, who won a letter playing the position last year.

Three more senior lettermen —Rob Whaley, 185; Howie Taylor, 175; and Pete Spiller, 172—will vie for the guard position. Spiller is from Lawrenceville. All are relatively inexperienced.

The end positions are "up for grabs." Only one player, letterman Dan Pidcock, a senior, has experience playing the position. Moreover, Pidcock is somewhat small for end, weighing only 150 pounds and standing 5'10". "I'll just have to keep trying different boys at the position," reported Waterman.

Two boys who should see some action for Hun this season are Dave Richards, a junior substitute line backer who has grown quite a bit, and Thorn Watkins. Watkins looked good at the end last year, according to Waterman, but a back injury early in the season forced him to sit out the rest of the campaign. He is a senior.

CAPTAINS NAMED

For Tennis Round Robin. Boy and girl captains have been named for the YM-YWCA Junior Tennis Tournament, which will be held through this Friday afternoon for beginners, and through the weekend for advanced players.

Team captains for the girls are Cathy de Grazia, Elizabeth Kelley, Gretchen Taylor, Dale Rose, Dede Shipway and Isabelle Vreeland. Assistants are Carol Beth Evans, Andre Holly, Diana Holly, Barbara Hoff, Penny Griswold, Katie Kennedy and Valebie Hackenberg.

Boys' teams have chosen Sherman Winters, Norman Furniss, Robert Szathmary, Robin Fox, and Griffin Dix. Assistants are Randy Hobler, John Jarem, Ken Kraft, Jack McCarthy, David Russinoff and David Tibbals.

Three Too Tough?

The 1961 Hun School football team will meet the same eight opponents it did in 1960. Coach Hawley Waterman reports that three of them—Tower Hill, Pingry and Delbarton—"will probably be too tough for us—as usual."

The Hun-Pingry game, November 4, will coincide with Parent's Day at Hun.

The 1961 schedule: Sept. 30, Pennington Prep; Oct. 7, Perkiomen, away; 13, Germantown Friends; 20, Tower Hill, away. 27, Friends Central, away; Nov. 4, Pingry; 11, George School; 18, Delbarton, away.

News Of The CHURCHES

NEW CHURCH PLANNED

For Belle Mead-Somerville. For more than 200 years the area along what is now Route 206 between Princeton and Pluckemin has been without a Presbyterian Church By the end of the month, it will have one.

Appointed organizing minister by the Presbytery of New Brunswick, the Rev. O. C. Hopper of 59 Red Hill Road plans to hold the first services later this month in the Hillsboro School. In time, a permanent Presbyterian Church will be built to serve the Belle Mead-Somerville area.

According to the Rev. Mr. Hopper, who retired a year ago as Alumni Secretary and director of the Placement Bureau at Princeton Theological Seminary, 109 families in the area are interested in the new church. The 72-year old minister conducted a religious survey of the area this spring for the Presbytery, under the auspices of the New Jersey Council of Churches.

"Now individuals living in the area have to go from three to eight miles to attend church," he explained. The committee aiding him in finding a site for the church is interested in a seven and a half acre lot on the corner of Homestead and Route 206 — "on the highway where it is a symbol," as the Rev. Mr. Hopper described it.

School Approves Use. The Hillsboro Board of Education will allow the church to use the school, on the corner of Route 206 and Old Amwell Road, "until the church has its own facilities," according to the Rev. Mr. Hopper. He plans to schedule church school for 9.30 a.m and morning worship for 11 a.m. Sundays.

Under a new policy of the Presbyterian Church, the Presbytery of New Brunswick will help the new church financially in building a permanent home. This policy is designed to aid the establishment of churches in rapidly growing suburbs, the Rev. Mr. Hopper explained.

The organizing minister of what he tentatively calls the First Presbyterian Church of Hillsboro Township considers it a "real thrill" to have a church of his own again. He was pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, Newark, for 21 years before coming to the Seminary in 1951.

Serving on the site committee with the Rev. Mr. Hopper are the Rev. Dr. Donald M. Meisel, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton and chairman of the National Missions Committee of the Presbytery of New Brunswick, and two lay members, Thomas Sharpe and C. Calvin Wilson. Mr. Sharpe and Mr. Wilson both live in the area to be served by the new church.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Women's Society of the Calvary Baptist Church will discuss books with Christian concerns at a "Booketeria" scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Paul M. Harrison, Mrs. C. Howard Hopkins, Mrs. Dwight A. Shaw, Mrs. Roy E. Swartz and Mrs. Roy E. Vogt will review the books. Mrs. Kenneth L. Maxwell will lead devotions and Mrs. George C. Keymer, president, will preside.

A committee of ladies of the First Baptist Church will sponsor a chicken dinner Sunday at the Church. The dinner, scheduled from 12:30 to 7 p.m., will be open to the public.

The Rev. Dr. S. Robert Weaver, minister of the Princeton Baptist Church, Penns Neck, will travel to London, Ontario, to preach the ordination sermon for Gerald A. Brown. Mr. Brown was a member of Dr. Weaver's church in Regina, Saskatchewan.

The Women's Division of the Jewish Center will meet at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday to hear Mrs. Marver Bernstein discuss the world tour she and her husband took. Mrs. Simon Larach, president of the group, will outline projects for the coming year. Mrs. Seymour J. Adler and Mrs. George Goldsmith will serve as hostesses.

The Rev. Ivan Fagre, a missionary to Japan, will speak at the first fall meeting of the Women's Service League of the Lutheran Church of the Messiah, scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Thursday. The Rev. Mr. Fagre is now studying at Princeton Theological Seminary.

The Women's Guild of the Second Presbyterian Church will open its fall program with a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday. A group of young people and members of the Guild will present "Echoes of Summer." Mrs. James A. Rowan is program chairman.

The Sunday School of the Princeton Ethical Culture Society will open for its second year September 24, with classes scheduled for 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon Sundays at the Princeton Country Day School. The classes offer a liberal religious education for children of ages from 6 to 14.

New Year to Arrive

The Jewish religious year 5722 will begin at sundown Sunday. Orthodox and Conservative Jews will observe the New Year holiday, Rosh Hashanah, for two days, while Reform Jews will observe one day.

Cantor Herman Diamond of Brooklyn, N. Y., will chant the services to be held morning and evening throughout the two-day period at the Princeton Jewish Center. The services will embody prayers in both Hebrew and English reflecting the Conservative and Reform traditions.

Rabbi Aaron Krauss will deliver the sermons and Sylvan Friedman will direct the choir. Ernest Kaufman, chairman of the Center's religious committee, will be in charge of lay participation.

OFF TO A NEW CHURCH AT 72: The Rev. O. C. Hopper, 39 Red Hill Road, will organize a new church to serve the Belle Mead-Somerville area. The 72-year old minister retired from the Seminary staff a year ago after 38 years of active church work. (Staff Photo)

Obituaries

Anthony T. Amabile, 66, of Meadow Road, Princeton Junction, died August 30 at his home. A resident of Princeton Junction for 11 years, he was born in Jersey City and was a veteran of World War I. He retired in 1956 as a bridge inspector and civil engineer for the State Highway Department.

He leaves his wife, Mrs Josephine Amabile; a son, George Amabile; a brother, Patrick Amabile; and a sister, Mrs. Catherine Hendricks, both of Staten Island. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Paul's Church, with interment in Jersey City. Local arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Theresa H. Bovie of 44 Park Place died September 4 in Princeton Hospital after a long illness A Princeton resident for 56 years, she was the widow of Henry H. Bovie.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Erna Cromwell of Princeton; a son, Henry D Bovie of New Orleans, La.; and five grandchildren. The funeral will be held from the Kimble Funeral Home this Thursday, with requiem high mass to be celebrated at 9 a.m. in St Paul's Church. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Mrs. Apolonia Manasek, 92, died August 30 at her summer home on the Runyon Corner-Linvalle Road, Hopewell. A native of Traplik, Moravia, she came to this country in 1912. She was a licensed midwife in Moravia, and practiced in Vienna and New York.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Agnes B. Manasek of Hopewell, Mrs. Theresa Stanley of McAllister, Okla.; and Miss Stephanie Manasek of Englewood, three sons, Joseph Manasek of Dover, Sebastian Manasek of Miami, Fla., and Francis Manasek of New York City; three grandchildren; 15 great-grand-children, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Alphonsus' Church, Hopewell. Burial was at the convenience of the family.

Mrs. Katherine E. Tomenchok, 74, of 300 Alexander Street, died August 31 in Princeton Hospital after a long illness. A Princeton resident for the past 50 years, she was born in Hungary and was the widow of John Tomenchok.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs Mary Coria of Hamilton Township; three sons, Andrew Tomenchok of Hopewell, and John Tomenchok and Joseph Tomenchok, both of Trenton; three brothers and a sister in Hungary; eight grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Paul's Church with burial in the parish cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Grey Cameron of 2 Dickinson Street died September 4 in Princeton Hospital after a long illness.

A native of Glasgow, Scotland, she had been a Princeton resident for 35 years. She was a member of Thistle Lodge No. 220, Daughters of Scotia.

Wife of William Cameron, she is also survived by two brothers, John and Robert Long of Scotland, and a sister, Mrs. Catherine B. Mason of England. The funeral will be held Thursday at 2 at the Second Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. William L. Tucker, pastor emeritus, officiating.

Burial will be in Princeton Cemetery, under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Princeton Hospital.

Harry Sadenwater, 67, a former Princeton resident, died August 29 in Lenox Hill Hospital, New York City. Assistant to the vice-president of Radio Engineering Laboratories, Long Island City, he was a pioneer in naval aviation and radio communications.

In 1919, he was radio officer on the NC-1, one of the three Navy seaplanes that attempted a trans-Atlantic flight. His plane and one other were forced down near the Azores after taking off from Newfoundland, because of thick fog. Although the plane was in danger of foundering in the heavy seas, Mr. Sadenwater continued to send S.O.S. signals on the radio until the batteries were exhausted. A Greek freighter finally rescued the crew.

A recipient of the Navy Cross for his part in the operation, Mr. Sadenwater also was made a Knight of the Military Order of the Tower and Sword by the President of Portugal. He served for four years in the Naval Reserve and was credited with one of the first successful air-to-ground radio telephone communications.

After joining the radio engineering department of General Electric, he was put in charge of the technical operation of the company's broadcasting stations in the 1920's, and supervised the construction and initial operation of some of the first stations in the West.

He was a sales engineering specialist for RCA at one time, and a director and former president of the Radio Club of America. Mr. Sadenwater received one of the first "ham" radio operator's licences, and was a founder and director of the Armstrong Memorial Research Foundation.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Osgood Sadenwater of New York City; and a son, Paul O. Sadenwater. The service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, with burial in Princeton Cemetery.

OTTO MEY SUICIDE

Found Friday by Wife. Otto Mey of North Post Road, Princeton Junction, died Friday, September 1, from a gunshot wound in the head. The death was termed a suicide by State Police from the Princeton barracks.

Mr Mey's body was found on the lawn outside his house at 8 a.m. by his wife, Mrs. Sophie Gimple Mey. One shot had been fired from a 38 calibre pistol, found near the body.

According to the police report, Mr. Mey had been despondent for the past year, following the electrocution of his son in a farm accident near Clarksville. A Princeton Junction area resident for the past 50 years, Mr. Mey was born in Germany and had retired as a track foreman with the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was 80 years old.

SEVEN LOSE LICENSES

Under Speed, Point Programs. Two area motorists have had their licenses suspended under the state's 60/70 Excessive Speed Program and five have suffered the same fate at the hands of the Point System.

Theodore W. Dirkschneider, 19, Highway 206, Belle Mead, and Flory F. Toto, Jr., 44, of 73 Erdman Avenue, each lost theirs for 30 days for speeding. Mr. Toto was convicted in Connecticut in accordance with the Conn.-N. J. reciprocity agreement.

Point victims include David Gearhart, Schalks Road, Plainsboro; Roger W. Rollins, 24, 86 Spruce Street; and Mrs. Helen N. Mathey, 68, Great Road, all one month. Also, Louis Remos, 38, 211 Stockton Street, Hightstown, and Tezze J. Lee, 42, 12 Craven Lane, Lawrenceville, both two months.

HATS FOR SALE

At Auxiliary Party. A Hat Party Sale sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Kingston Volunteer Fire Company No. 1 will be held Tuesday from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Firehouse on Heathcote Road.

All hats will be $3.98 and all will be sold at the party. No orders will be taken. Mrs. Benjamin Stewart is serving as chairman of the affair.

DESIGNED FOR LIVING

"Y" Announces Adult Classes. A new course in Design for Living, a basic workshop in flower arranging, a seminar on "Great Books" and a new ceramics workshop will be featured this fall when the YWCA opens its adult program on September 25.

In the Design for Living Course, there will be six Wednesday morning lecture-demonstrations. Mrs. Richard Huber will discuss the use of color and textures in the home; Mrs. Gleen Mohrmann will show how a hostess may entertain with elegance, economy and simplicity; Mrs. Harold Vaughan, Jr., will demonstrate ways of making unusual Christmas decorations from materials already on hand in the home.

New lectures added to the series will be Mrs. David Frothingham on "Plants in the Home"; recent research into buying habits by a member of Opinion Research Corporation; "Treasures of the Princeton Museum" by Patrick J. Kelleher, curator of the Museum and flower arrangement for the home by Mrs. I. S. Rossiter of Hopewell.

The Great Books course, open to men and women, will offer an opportunity to read and discuss the classics, using the first year course of the Great Books Foundation. The course will meet only twice a month to provide members with time to read and ponder.

The ceramics workshop will cover elementary to advanced techniques, including the use of the potter's wheel glazing and scraffito. Mrs. G. Hutten Hughes, who has taught in New Jersey public schools and in private classes, will teach and will also speak briefly to students on the history of porcelains, pottery and glaze.

In addition, the "Y" will offer courses in foreign languages, English for the foreign born, sewing, guitar, painting and bridge classes.

The "Y" will experiment this fall with a new program which will provide a reduced nursery fee to any mother who volunteers for nursery duty twice in a 12-week period.

Registration will be held September 18 through 22. Additional information may be obtained from the "Y" at WA 4-4825.

SOMERSET ARTISTS MEET

For Films, Plans. Art films on impressionism and the Renaissance will be shown to members of the South Somerset Guild of Creative Art Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Hillsborough School, South Somerville, Route 206.

The Guild has announced plans for an outdoor concert and art show to be held on September 23 at Alma White College, Zarepath. Anthony Camillo will conduct an orchestra of 35 Somerset musicians and Eleanor Holly and Gene Ferguson will be featured singers.

Artists are invited to exhibit and to take their entries to Alma White College September 20 from 4:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Exhibit chairman is William Heims, FLanders 9-3943.

ART SHOW TO OPEN

In New Hope. Jury members have been appointed for the 31st Phillips Mill Art Exhibition to be held September 23 through October 29 at the Mill on River Road, north of New Hope, Pa. Mrs. John W. Barry is chairman of the exhibition.

Clarence H. Carter, whose award-winning paintings are in the permanent collection of 23 museums including the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art and the Whitney Museum of American Art, will serve as jury chairman for painting. Norman Kent, editor of "American Artist" will be with Mr. Carter on the jury as will Richard Hirsch, director of the Allentown, Pa., art museum.

Mr. Kent is internationally known as artist, author, illustrator and print-maker. His prints are in the Library of Congress and the Carnegie Institute.

Jury chairman for sculpture will be Heinz Warneke head of the sculpture department at the Corcoran Schaal of Art, George Washington University. Alden M. Wicks of New Hope will serve as chairman for hanging.

TEXTILE SEMINAR LISTED

PARTICIPATION HIGH SET

In Student Driver Program. New Jersey high school driver-education examinations reached an all-time high during the past school year, it was reported by Acting Motor Vehicle Director Ned S. Parsekian. In the school year, 1960-61, 47,849 students qualified for driver education certificates under the driver-education program.

Director Parsekian pointed out that 52.3 per cent of the number who qualified during the school year completed the entire course which requires a minimum of 30 hours of classroom study and six behind the wheel. This is an increase of 3,413 students over the previous school year.

Of the 47,849 students examined last year, the vast majority—43,052—were enrolledi in public high schools. The rest were students in private and parachial schools. Eighteen private and parochial schools in the state offer the course.

if you have
beaucoup d'argent,
DON'T CALL!

Our tale of a new type of house that provides more space for less bucks is dull stuff for mansion dwellers. But if you're not averse to spending money wisely and you rather like the idea of plenty of room and light and air — inside as well as out, then let's talk. We'd like to explain and show you our concept of a new type of lighthearted living that we deeply believe in — the Techbuilt House.
